ASB presidential candidates speak out

By NANCY SLOAN
Staff Writer

Candidates for ASB president addressed current ASB issues, reviewed their experience in student government and pleaded for votes during the speakout in the grill area yesterday. Eric Steinberg, the first candidate addressing the group, was more concerned with ASB funding.

"I AM in favor of trying to make the ASB somewhat more financially independent of the administration," Steinberg said.

Steinberg proposes to do this by asking the administration to allow the ASB to have a revenue producing system, as "Sidelines," which Steinberg called the "lack of aggressive leadership in the ASB," while Calvin Howell cited his experience as proof of his ability to efficiently run the house.

Rosalind Ross, as speaker of the senate, used his power to make a "working senate." Ronald Malone told of his "great expectations" for the student government, which appeared in the Feb. 18 issue. Steinberg proposed to do this by asking the administration to allow the ASB to have a revenue producing system, as "Sidelines," which Steinberg called the "lack of aggressive leadership in the ASB," while Calvin Howell cited his experience as proof of his ability to efficiently run the house.

TRACY CITY, Tenn. (UPI) — Gall Bray says she was just trying to be sure her boyfriend she missed him by printing a Valentine's Day message in a newspaper but wound up with her head pounded into the pavement by the boyfriend's renegade OPEC producers.

"I reckon she thought I wasn't good enough for her son," Mrs. Bray said as she left a hospital after a two-day treatment for a concussion and internal injuries.

Political ‘dogfight seen; race awareness urged

In two articles in this issue, Sidelines is presenting statements made by Associated Student Body candidates in order to keep students abreast of the issues and stances of each candidate.

Several of the contests for ASB offices could prove to be rigorous and interesting races. The election of ASB president gives every indication of being a political dogfight as Eric Steinberg, president gives every indication of being a political dogfight as Eric Steinberg, a candidate and is trying to “shaft” issues and stances of each candidate.

Many students do not vote in the ASB elections as they believe it really does not matter who is representing them.

STUDENTS of this opinion have no reason to boycott the kind of representation they are getting.

It is up to each individual student to insure that the best possible people are elected to ASB offices. Thus, the candidates’ positions and the issues are being published for the students’ scrutiny.

Endorsement policy explained

Yesterday we were informed of rumors that Sidelines already plans to endorse a particular ASB presidential candidate and is trying to “shaft” another.

This is untrue. In order to clear up the confusion, here is our endorsement policy.

TO DECIDE who we will endorse, TO DECIDE who we will endorse, in other words, the candidate for a particular office.

If we decide to proceed, we will then vote on who we will endorse.

Our decision will be published in Tuesday's issue.

Prytula’s work praised; efforts should continue

Even now, the death of Robert Prytula is still being mourned by students, friends and colleagues. Prytula was an important part of the university community, and his death will be felt greatly by all who were influenced by his hard work and tender compassion.

But the influence of Robert Prytula went far beyond the scope of the university. He helped establish and direct the Rutherford County Rape and Sexual Abuse Center and was an active leader in the Boy Scouts of America. He also assisted the Tennessee Law Enforcement Academy, the Metro Nashville Police Department, and local law-enforcement agencies.

Prytula was a man of high ideals who practiced what he preached. He felt a commitment to his chosen vocation, and it compelled him to go above and beyond the call of duty. His work with the sexually abused stood out as an example of his concern for those who had been psychologically battered by forces beyond their control.

A person of Robert Prytula’s character deserves to be honored for his dedication to helping those in need of help. A fitting memorial to Prytula would be the continuation of the work he started. His work began with the rape and sexual abuse center and should be carried on as a living memorial to a man so dedicated to his success.

Now it is imperative that those who loved and respected Prytula do everything within their power to see that his work is continued, so that distressed individuals might continue to reap benefits from his compassionate concern.

Reader denies right-to-know

To the editor:

In the words of "MAINE'S" Col. Potter, I say HORSE-HOCKEY to your editorial in today's Sidelines. I see the same thing you see editorial on the draft and grants.

If I mention the name, Gov. Ray Blanton, what does everyone say? “Oh, that crook.” But let us say that all the publicity, slanted and otherwise, had never come out about him, what would people say? “Oh, a lovely governor!”

A newspaper article comes out on the front page and tells of someone being pressed for a crime. What happens after that? The person is acquitted or let go for some reason and the newspapers print a small article on page 40 or not at all.

What I am saying is that one newspaper article can ruin a person’s life, on a campus such as this, the embarrassment would never stop if you were allowed to print what you want about a person. And don’t tell me you would stick to the facts, because you of all people should know how to slant an article to make a person look good or bad, as the case may be. It is done all the time.

So, let us keep your "right-to-know" literary, I say again, HORSE-HOCKEY. We the public, do not always have the right to know. The law

Play review gets criticism

To the editor:

I found the banner headline “ Few Flaws Found in ‘Of Mice & Men’ a shocking way to introduce a feature article about an outstanding production of Steinbeck’s "Of Mice & Men." In fairness, I read the article and noticed my ruffled feathers, until I got to the last paragraph, “To list the shortcomings..." I was once again left with my mouth hanging open.

The shortcoming was really writing that comment and that headline in the first place. The "minute flaws" should never have been mentioned. They should simply be chalked up to any stage performance where those things happen.

Cadet Commander gets good experience in ROTC

By ANTHONY PILLOW

As a part of the annual Fine Arts Festival, MTSU will offer four free films to students and the public beginning Monday. "Pink Flamingos," starring Divine, "Evita," "The Bicycle Thief," and "King of Hearts" will be shown this week in the Keathley University Center Theatre.

Starting off the week will be the X-rated "Pink Flamingos," a low budget, sex-filled exploitation film that holds the title of "The World's Filthiest Film." The Marbiles and Raymire Matte are out to "outfli filme Divine and take the lead for themselves.

The Marbiles' main claim to fame is their business of kidnaping and selling the babies to couples. In a series of hilarious and disgusting adventures, Divine and her family finally capture the Marbiles and execute them in front of the tabloid press.

"The Bicycle Thief," an Oscar-winning foreign film, will be shown Tuesday. This film is Vittorio De Sica's masterpiece about an impoverished Italian laborer and his son's bicycle that is essential to their survival.

The father, dependent upon an unidentified society, had forsook to steal from another as payment for this bike.

Wednesday's film will be "Evita," a story set in a nightmare landscape. A pointy-headed young man with an eagle-like face that his little commander is not an easy task.

"You have to have outstanding managerial skills, military knowledge, military bearing and appearance and last but not least, intelligence," said Maj. Robert Gailbreath, military science instructor.

GAILBREATH said there are four basic areas that are considered when choosing a cadet commander: academic, moral, military science academic performance and leadership.

Hill got involved in ROTC because of the opportunity to receive a scholarship, and because he wanted to serve in a career that focused on the military.

"I thought the officer route would be the best way to go," he said.

ROTC is for one who seeks a mental and physical challenge, one who feels he can make important decisions and one who feels he has the leadership potential, Hill said.

Gailbreath agrees.

"Leadership experience is one of the benefits Hill has received, which will enable him once he's on active duty," Gailbreath said.

The MAJOR said another benefit of being top cadet commander is representing MTSU this spring at the George C. Marshall Leadership Conference, a gathering of the top ROTC cadets in the nation.

While there, the cadets are addressed by top military and civilian leaders in the United States.

Hill has been in ROTC for two years, becoming a cadet battalion commander in the fall. He considers it an achievement within itself.

He was able to "establish a good reputation," Gailbreath said.

Hill said what he likes most about ROTC is that it teaches him different "Chasme and Shaker Dance," "Collected Overalling," "Universal Judgment" and "Satirical Overture." The Symphonic Band has selected both of the West Tennessee pieces for their spring concert. This year's concert will be held Sunday at 3 p.m. in the Music Hall of the Wright Building.

Real Hawkeye cares little for ‘M·A·S·H’

By GINO DEL GUERCIO

AUGUSTA, Maine — While millions of Americans lament the end of the "M*A*S*H" television series, the original Hawkeye Pierce says if it weren’t for the money he receives from the show, he’d be glad to see it end.

"My wife and I were in a bed room in New Zealand one night and had the choice of watching the ‘Dukes of Hazard,’ ‘M*A*S*H’ or an educational program on the artificial insemination of cows. I chose to watch the cow show," H. Richard Hornberger, the Maine doctor who created M*A*S*H by writing a fictional account of his experiences as an Army surgeon during the Korean war, said.

THIRTY-TWO years after the book was published, the movie—made into the bayous and salt marshes surrounding the lab, —accentuates self-awareness in the minds of a lot of flaky anti-Americans. "I think we should have been altered," he said. "If you're going to start a war, you might as well play to win."

"NO ONE in their right mind would be pro-war. But I operated on a thousand or so wounded kids, and I know more about war than a bunch of under-educated actors who go around blithering those sanctimonious self-righteous notes," he said.

Instead of anti-war, a term to which he objects, he prefers to call the book anti-Army. "The book is only anti-war in the minds of a lot of flaky people," he said. "You might call the book anti-Army, but very few doctors like the Army," he said. "That is why we were able to survive and have a fairly good time in the midst of a lot of chaos."

Trackmen host Championship

By MIKE JONES

With the OVC Indoor Track Championships this weekend at Murphy Center, MTSU's trackmen will seek the conference crown and, according to Coach Dean Hayes, "The biggest thing is to try to give our best performance to be the OVC champion both individually and teamwise." The conference title is not only eagerly sought by them, but also needed by the school to qualify for the NCAA championships.

HAYES has already had one of his units qualify for the NCAA championships, as the mile-relay team of Perald Ellis, Gary Porter, Tim Johnson met the qualifying standards during their last meet with a time of 3:12.13.

MTSU appears to be the strong favorite in this weekend's championship, but Hayes added that Murray State will be a challenger because they have their biggest strength in distance events.

"Really, nobody in the league has good distance runners," the veteran track mentor said. "We have three or four I think that can score some points. If Eastern and us can chop Murray up a little bit in the distance events, hopefully we can keep it from being too close."

After last week, Hayes and company had been fortunate in that they had only one serious injury. That was to Billy Porter, one of the top distance men on the team. Porter had not run since Oct. 18, but returned two weeks ago to take a fifth-place finish in the 1,000-yard run.

"We had a good race that hit the team last week was the loss of triple-jumper Eddie Loyd, who suffered a hyperextended knee and was unable to get any real practice recently."

"I hated to see Eddie get hurt," Hayes said. "It costs us a lot of points, but it is just a matter of two weeks of good training that he could've used for the NCAA."

Hayed listed Loyd's triple-jump of 53-3 in the season's opening meet as one of the high points for the year.

"It was a good race, but I hate to see him hurt," Hayes admitted. "I think that one will get him in the NCAA. I don't think there is any question that we should not keep Loyd from competing in the OVC championships."

Lady Raiders take undefeated record to lovely Austin Peay

By MIKE JONES

MTSU's Lady Raiders continue their domination of the Ohio Valley Conference in basketball for women's race and look to increase it by another game when they return home tomorrow against Austin Peay in Clarksville.

Tip-off is set for 5 p.m. at Dunn Center.

COACH Larry Inman's Lady Raiders are first in the league with a 6-1 mark, but they have only won three games when they played right, so. With him to go with Ovalene Meeks, Andre Kirnes and Eddie Loyd, that gives us four good jumpers."

Earlier signing date wanted by Donnelly

By MAT "CHIEF" WILLIAMS

An earlier signing date for high school football players would be beneficial to smaller schools, according to MTSU Coach James "Boots" Donnelly.

"I favor one signing date, and I'd like to see it moved up to Jan. 20," Donnelly said.

DONELLY said he thinks the present signing date in mid-February favors the big schools, because they have more money to spend and can afford to be more selective in their recruiting.

"The later signing date favors the bowl teams," the coach noted.

Bowl teams need more time to recruit because of the added length of their season, but Donnelly logically explained that this shouldn't be a factor in the signing process.

"By DECEMBER, most athletes know where they're going to go to school," Donnelly said that he felt that Harris Walker made a wise decision by signing a contract to play with the New Jersey Generals of the new United States Football League (USFL). Walker's contract calls for a guaranteed $1.5 million for signing and an additional 85 percent of any money earned over a three-year period. The original offer to him by Georgia State was misreported as $16.5 million to be paid over a five-year period.

"IF THERE is a player that comes through here and it offers a million dollars, I will tell him to take the money," Donnelly said.

The coach said that the situation could have been handled with more discretion, however.

"It [the negotiations, signing and announcement] could have been done more professionally," he said. "There should be some more regulations in the USFL."

"THIS is a young man that had a lot of pressure," Donnelly said. The Raiders have added Doug Lipscomb, from Georgia State, who has handled the scoring attack for the Raiders, lifting them into a seven-game winning streak.

"DOUG played really well, he played strong," Simpson said.

Senior big man Wendell "Bo" Roberson was the key man on the bench and exploded for nine points, including three slam dunks late in the ball game to help inspire the win. The Raiders have added Doug Lipscomb, from Gainesville, Ga., and handled the scoring attack for the Raiders, lifting them into a seven-game winning streak.

"The dunks are exciting and the whole team; everybody does a lot better than we have all year; it's long overdue. We're due and we're ready to get the ball and played aggressive defense in the closing moments.

JUNIOR Marcup Mapes had 12 points for the game, and showed more confidence and strength than he's shown all year, according to Simpson.

"Marcup had a good offensive game, as did several others," the coach noted. "I thought he was most valuable to us. Doing the defense on the ball-court," the Raider mentor said.

Georgia State was led in scoring by Tony Graham, who had 26 points. Joe Brown had 14 in the losing effort.

The Panthers closed out their season with the loss and went on to face the Panthers, who had beaten them in the closing minutes.

"We played that way for a very long time," the Coach "Ramrod" Simpson said. "It was a good start for him," Hayes noted. "I think that one will get him in the NCAA. I don't think there is any question that we should not keep Loyd from competing in the OVC championships."

Basketball fun for Lady Raider Hoover

By TERRY MORROW

Sports Writer

Sports Editor's note: This is the first of a series profiling members of the Lady Raiders basketball team.

If Holly Hoover misses her free throws at this Saturday's Tennessee Valley Conference (OTC) game, she might as well blame it on the jinx she joked about. "I know I must be under some sort of jinx," she said. "I've missed free throws at this Saturday's game and in the SEC. So, from top to bottom, they get my nod for the 1982-83 season.

Holly Hoover is Bennie Owen's "favoritething" in basketball. Though women's basketball is considered a minor sport in our society, the Hoover's "favoritething" is one of the things that happen that make me think, 'why not?'"

"I'm Terrible at free throws, and I know when I miss them that it's partly due to the way we're playing now," she said. "I certainly didn't pick it up from my parents."

Even the Ohio Valley conference has been hurt by a jinx her by a jinx she's had. "I just lost my underclassman to an injury last year, and I can't be mad at her because she deserves it."

"There are other sports here, too, that aren't my favorite things, but they're out there and I'm going to play them."

She explained, "we can go all the way to the national championships, but we need to do it with the team."

The 6-4 junior from Ringgold, Ga., totaled 37 points, 31 rebounds, 7 blocked shots and three steals in the two Lady Raider victories.

"I couldn't buy a layup at Tech," she said. "But, I've improved on it here. They still aren't my favorite things, though."

Hoover's "favoritething" is basketball. The Ringgold, Ga., native has been playing basketball since second grade, and hopes she'll end up as a coach for a high school or college team.

"Basketball is not work," she said. "It's fun. It's a lot of fun. And right now, we're evaluating the conference and the SEC."

"We've been working on the team this week, and constantly top the statute charts as leading scorer and rebounder."

In her hand, she told around 50 percent.

Four for Holly

MTSU's Holly Hoover has been named the Ohio Valley Conference Women's Player of the Week for performances against Murray State and Vanderbilt last week.

The 6-4 junior from Ringgold, Ga., totaled 37 points, 31 rebounds, 7 blocked shots and three steals in the two Lady Raider victories.

The women's basketball team will be coming into its own popularity and support soon enough, though male-dominated sports have the upper hand.

"There are other sports here, though, that aren't my favorite things, but they're out there and I'm going to play them."

She explained, "we can go all the way to the national championships, but we need to do it with the team."
