(Editorial To Each Student Personally) The December 30 issue of Life contained a story in its letter column that those who don't take saving for National Defense seriousenough should all read.

Let's Conserve For Defense - - .

It's a letter written from Japan by a young Japanese girl over a year ago to a friend in a Western state. In it she tells how the Japanese were conserving everything possible.

This conservation is really beginning to rear its head as something we are all going to have to learn. Every extra ounce of clothing, paper, metal, rags, etc., are needed and needed bad. Remember that it may be best to take care of that woolen skirt or pair of pants If they can't be replaced for any small sum.

The Library is closing up at night. It seems that an average of about 15 or 16 students came over in the course of an evening last fall, "and that ain't good." Of course National Defense needs the electricity, but it will always need "Brains" and out of 700 students 15 in the library at night could be enlarged and not suffer from over weight,

If 25,000,000 more U. S. citizens would be careful-say take curves in the road slowly and not waste your tires or use less electricity-it would mean a lot toward twisting the red babboon's tall.

"I just can't seem to realize that we are at war," a friend of mine told me during the Christmas holidays. I believe I understand the way she feels. She has no brothers in the armed forces, she isn't affected in any way with defense of the country, all she does-as a lot of other of us do-is go about our business and disregard any of the hints as to how all can help win the war. This statement was not exceptional, many people in this intersection of the nation are the same way. And it will take more than a few setbacks in the Pacific to change them, setbacks that are inevitable if people don't change this attitude.

Scientists See Tough Grind

A "tougher, vacationless school year" for teachers and students of physics in American universities as a means of speeding up the training of scientists needed for the nation's war effort was proposed recently by the executive committee of the American Association of Physics Teachers.

Declaring honors for the air defense of Britain could be credited as well to physicists who develop radio means of detecting approaching enemy aircraft as to the gallant men of the R. A. F. who beat them off," Dr. Robert A. Patterson, chairman of the committee on national defense, said in an interview at the opening of a joint meeting of the association and the American Physical society at Princeton University:

"In our war efforts, the men who man the physics laboratiries behind the lines will play a part as important as that of the fighting forces, for the nation that keeps ahead in a technical sense is the nation that saves its own

Definite Steps Planned for High Standards

Chapel Programs to Set Mark As Higher Cultural Standards For TSC Seen By ASB

Definite steps were taken toward he launching of the campaign for higher and more universally observed cultural standards on the campus when the Congress of the Associated Student Body held its first meeting of the winter session Monday, January 5. A resolution was adopted to the effect that the Congress present the student program at assembly on January 14. This program is to have as its ourpose the introduction of the theme around which the student programs will be built this quarter. That theme will be correlated with the aims of the Congress with regard to MTSC standards. Ruth Tittsworth, presiding officer, appointed a committee composed of Jarrie Swift, Ernest Hooper, and Charlotte Stephenson to work out the details of the program.

In connection with the schools civilian defense plans a resolution was unanimously adopted which recommended that the faculty make beginners, advanced, and instructors courses in first aid available for the entire student body and that the students take advantage of the opportunity one hundred per cent. Maintaining Morale

Seven rules for maintaining wartime civilian morale have been outlined by Dr. Irving J. Lee of Northwestern University, an expert on the psychology of anxiety. For a number of years Dr. Lee has applied the principles back of these rules to many cases of stage fright with amazing success.

"The position of many Americans today," he points out, "is analogous to that experienced in stage fright. This situation, if permitted to continue, might lead to a deterioration of civilian morale."

Points to be remembered by all civilians during the crisis are:

1. Center your attention on your task-at-hand and seek new ways of helping.

2. Don't feel that the whole burden rests on you. Just do something, however small, and the net result will be great. Worrying about a situation dissipates your energy, leads to more worry, and saps your efficiency for

4. Don't expect too much. Prepare for bad news. It isn't the pain, but the surprise coming of the pain that hurts. Remember that the anticipation of danger has a protective effect. 5. Question all rumors. Don't let them affect you emotionally. 6. Trust in authority. They are the only ones in a position to know the facts.

7. Don't worry near children. They are easily excitable and spread anxiety quickly.

Just as an inexperienced public speaker allows his worry about the audience or his own failings to distract his thoughts from the talk he is to make, so many civilians dissipate their energies worrying about conditions they cannot control and lose their effectiveness for necessary duties. Civilians often worry so much about war conditions that they lose efficiency in their work and their personal lives. This increases their anxiety. Any prolongation of worry leads first to inefficiency of everyone, it is essent.al that we realize what our immediate task is and do not allow worry to distract us." -From Associated College Press

Fie, Mr. Carnegie!

Dale Carnegie may know all about how to win friends and influence people-at least he knows how to write a saleable book about it-but somebody ought to take him aside and tell him something about how to read a newspaper.

"I buy newspapers," he says, "but I just read the headlines"

That, says he, is to save time. Well, we don't know how valuable his time is but we'd hate to trust his judgment of public affairs if it's based on headlinereading.

Fact is, the whole notion that "you can't believe what you read in the newspapers" arises from the benighted habit of reading only the headlines-and Mr. Carnegie isn't the only sinner.

Newspapers and correspondents go to a great deal of pains to tell, in news stories, what is the source of their information, and to indicate what credence is to be placed in it. Any reasonable discerning reader, for example, knows that a story reporting that a short wave radio bulletin picked up in New York from the British Broadcasting company, saying that the Moscow radio quotes a Stockholm report from Berlin that Goering has committed suicide, is to be taken with a sizeable measure of salt. But the headline can't say all that; it can only say, "Report Goer-

The reader who doesn't get beyond the headlines, and who sees next day a radiophoto from Berlin showing Hermann, big as life, leading a parade down the Wilhelmstrasse, shrugs and says, "Well, there you are: you can't depend on what you read in the newspapers." But the reader who has perused the story is aware that the newspaper was doing its job properly when it reported the rumor and identified its source, and that it has run down the rumor with proper zeal and now brings the radiophoto to disprove it.

If it is asked, "Why did the newspaper print the rumor in the first place if it didn't know whether it was true?" the answer is that it's a newspaper's business to print what is being said and done, and to tell who says or does it, and to follow each story with new developments as they occur or are ferreted Human Heart, Gamaliel Bradford at Murfreesboro. Athletes Outstanding In Three Fields: Athletics, Coaching, Military Service

The athletic setup of Mid-State can be proud of its boys for at least three things, with possibilities for pride in many other fields. As we all know, the Blue Raiders have always been known as good athletes and fine sportsmen. Their conduct on all fields and floors of competition is usually above reproach. There is no need of going into a broad discussion of their feats and exploits.

Looking over the coaching situation in Nashville during the holidays, I wasn't surprised to find that TSC alumni monopolized that setup, as it was rather to be expected. The surprising part of it was that just as fast as a pos became vacant, it was filled by a former Tennessee State

Perhaps the outstanding coaching Job in Nashville this past football season was turned by Ed "Squatty" Hessey, former Raider back. Hessey coaches at Hillsboro High and was acclaimed the coach of the season in Davidson County.

The most complete, and probably the most efficient, Staff of Raider alumni was at Isaac Litton where Jaybird Hamblen holds the fort as head coach. To keep from filling the entire page with details, I'll just list a few of the coaches in Nashville and where they are located. At Goodlettsof the coaches in Nashville and where they are located ville is Bubber Murphy; Ken Miles and Bob Warden are at Central; WAA Plans Bass is at Dupont; Granville Waggoner is assistant coach at West; Oliver is at Conn; Hackman is at Bellevue; Charley Greer coaches at Andrew Jackson and Webb Porter is head man at Woodbine, while Rufus Brandon is principal and coach at Una. Gray Sands and Reeves Derryberry have just recently left Nashville, with Derryberry giving Harriman their first championship this year.

This list is incomplete, but it gives you a vague idea of what former Raiders are doing to help the standing of our school in Middle Tennessee.

As far as the military picture is concerned, we may be proud that we have more boys in the Air Service than any school our size in has made plans for an interesting Tennessee. This schedule includes nine home games, with the first game tonight against Alabama Teachers College. Other home games are to be with Murray State, Chattanooga U., Delta Teachers of Cleveland, done before. Miss., Union University, Sewanee, Austin Peay, Memphis State, and David Lipscomb.

This schedule is considerably well balanced, but the teams Cumberland, Tenn. Tech, and Western Ky. are conspicious by their absence.

Next strongest opponent will be Delta, where basketball is practiced from the time that school opens in the fall. While we were there this past fall for a football game, we learned that they had ten basketball players who had been practicing ever since school opened.

Other opponents who will be strong are Memphis State, Union University, and Chattanooga U.

Coach Midgett Tops In College, Placed On Conference Teams

It has been accepted on the campus that Wink Midgett was an outstanding star in athletics in college, but none of his feats have ever been discussd here before. Perhaps it was because it was that his greatest football thrill came in defeating Mid-State, or becaues he was from our arch rival in athletics, but anyway, it has never been
