Play Produced By Student Directors Is Hit: Rated One of Club's Best Productions

Mystery and the conflict between two scheming personalities held a large audience in suspense last week when the Buchanan Dramatic Club presented the first of two performances of "Ladies in Retirement" on the TSC stage.

In the absence of Edward L. Tarpley, sponsor of the club, John Thomas Zumbro of Murfreesboro, assisted by Raikes Slinkard and Harold Radford, shaped the psychological mystery into a production that is a credit to the directors, the club, and the Tarpley reputation for good plays.

Congress Passes Support of First Aid

On January 5, the Congress of the ASB passed a resolution to the effect that first aid courses be offered the students of TSC and that students participate in the classes one hundred per cent. A committee headed by John D. Wiseman, Jr., was named to write the "Lyon Den" resolution. It follows:

"Whereas, the United States is now engaged in building up its civilian defenses for the immediate protection of coastal areas against air raids and for the protection of interior areas against possible air raids; and

Congratulations To Buchanan Dramatic Club

"Ladies In Retirement" was an excellent piece of work. The dramatic club and drama classes are to be congratulated for carrying on without the assistance of Mr. Tarpley.

In our opinion this admirable addition to a long line of dramatic successes since Mr. Edward L. Tarpley came to Tennessee State was due to a live-wire group of drama students who furnished the nucleus for the large amount of work put into the produc-

A partial list of these students who should be congratulated includes John Zumbro, who served as director, and Raikes Slinkard and Harold Radford, his assistants; Betty McCampbell, lighting director; Ruby Lee Snell, properties; Margaret Taylor, makeup; Margaret Bruner, programs; Ruth Peterson, tickets; Fenton Warren, club president; and Ruth Englert, Kate Miles, Ruth Taylor, Ernest Hooper and Beth Orr.

The cast, need it be said, was excellent. Many of them were above the characterizations of the actors at the Nashville Playhouse according to those who saw both productions.

We hope the Dramatic Club will continue to climb until it is the best in the state . . . and that isn't such a long climb.

"All students, particularly those who expect to go into the armed forces in the near future, should enter whole-heartedly into the new physical training program now underway on the campus," The Forensic Club, represented Coach Jordan stated this morning.

The program which is in line with trends over the nation has been stepped up to a pace which includes three sessions a week past; military drills; calisthenics; and strong body building work at every class meeting.

A review of "Sapphira and the Slave Girl" by Willa Cather, Knopf

From the Western pioneers whom she knows and depicts so well Willa Cather turns to the plantation family and its slaves for her new novel, "Sapphira and the Slave Girl."

Miss Cather, who was born in Virginia, has treated the question of slaves and the war in a new and less sentimental way than have most writers on the subject, yet "Sapphira and the Slave Girl" is about as relishing as Sunday dinner rehashed for Wednesday lunch. This novel would have been more appealing had it preceded "So Red the Rose," "Gone With the Wind," or even "The Birth of a

It is not the style or the plan of "Sapphira and the Slave Girl" which make it dull reading. Miss Cather has skillfully set the story and character in a bolod outline which is at points refreshing. She is to be commended for omitting the scenes of the War of Secession. She leads the reader almost up to the first battle, leaps over the years of fighting, and writes an epilogue whose setting is twenty-five years later. When one reaches the brink of the War one feels very closely akin to the proverbial horse that can be lead to the water but can't be made to drink.

Miss Cather is a master at characterization and scene setting. Mrs. Colbert, the mistress of the farm, is particularly well depicted in this story, but it is probably the Negroes who are the most interesting characters. The Virginia countryside made of hills cut by pleasant clude: Commerce Club, F.F.A. Raiders Lose To Bisons In Last 8 Minutes

'Crackerbox' Gym. And Inability to Hit Crip Shots Causes Midgettmen to Fall

The Blue Raiders lost a heart breaking ball game last Tuesday night to the Bisons of David Lipscomb in the crackerbox Lipscomb uses as a gym, 20-29.

The Raiders led throughout the entire contest until the last eight minutes, when Brewington fouled out. Then the Bisons seemed to run wild, scoring 16 points while the Raiders were garnering four. Tennessee State's shooting stars were greatly handicapped by the steel beams that swing low over the Lipscomb baskets. Numerous shots that would have ordinarily been good for baskets hit the rafters, for out-of-bounds balls.

The game provided one of the most interesting sidelights that has occurred in any of our previous ball games. In an effort to break through the strong Lipscomb zone defense, the Raiders held the ball in the middle of the court for over four minutes in the second quarter.

The first half ended with the ing. Woodlee and Newland were Lipscomb's hot boys, getting 10 and 9 respectfully.
