Maid Of Cotton To Be Picked

Applications are now being considered by the National Cotton Council in Memphis for the 1968 Maid of Cotton selection.

Twenty girls will be invited from hundreds of applicants to participate in the finals at Memphis Dec. 28-29. Judging is done on the basis of beauty, personality, background, and training.

Applicants must be single girls between the ages of 19 and 23, who are at least five feet five inches tall, and were born in a cotton-producing state. One of the highlights of the Maid of Cotton title will be a good will mission to Japan in April, according to the National Cotton Council.

Application forms may be obtained by writing to the National Cotton Council, 1918 North Parkway, Memphis, Tennessee 38112. Deadline for returning applications with the required number of photographs is midnight, Dec. 1.

MTSU Math Club States Purpose

The MTSU Math Club, formed Sept. 20, 1967, has received provisional acceptance from the university according to the president, Bill Westlake.

The club, sponsored by Mr. Carl Levi, has approximately 40 charter members. Officers are Bill Westlake, president; Kenneth Row, vice-president; and Marlene Billingsby, secretary-treasurer. The members of the executive board are Stanley Mehurek, Sarah Jean Talley, and Robert Crosslan.

The constitution states the objectives of the club to be to stimulate interest in the field of math and to unify and advance the pursuits of the individual members in that field.

The Math Club meets on Thursday at 11 a.m. in Room 360, Old Main building.

Senior Class Elects Beauties

The Senior class of MTSU at a meeting Monday night, Oct. 16 nominated and elected a Homecoming attendant and two class beauties.

Rita Pulliam won the position for Senior Homecoming attendant for this year. Miss Pulliam is from Nashville and an elementary education major. She has been a cheerleader and has received several other honors during her years on this campus. Miss Pulliam will ride in the Homecoming parade and take part in other Homecoming activities.

The Senior class beauties elected were Suzanne Pyle and Kay Lester. Miss Pyle is from Murfreesboro and Miss Lester is from Nashville. These girls will represent the Senior class this year and will also ride in the Homecoming Parade on November 4.

Following the elections and meeting, the Senior class conducted a doughnut sale as a money-raising project to help pay for their Homecoming float.

MTSU PRESIDENT QUILL COPE and Regina Jones, Miss Home Economics, will be two of the many guests to appear at MTSU Home Economics Career Day on campus October 24. Dr. Cope will deliver the welcoming address. Miss Jones will be honored at a luncheon for the visitors.

John Bragg Urges 'Get Into Arena'

Representative John Bragg of Murfreesboro urged political scientists to "get into the arena" of practical politics in a dinner meeting address of the organizational meeting of Tennessee political scientists Oct. 13 at MTSU. At the afternoon meeting, Dr. John M. Claunch, president of Peabody College, said that political science is "always a live study"

Cope To Speak At Career Day

President Quill E. Cope will deliver the welcoming address to home economics majors from 150 high schools in the Middle Tennessee area at "Home Economics Career Day."

The event scheduled for Oct. 24, is being sponsored by the Home Economics Club of Middle Tennessee State University. Paul Womack, president of the Associated Student Body, will also speak at the opening session.

Designed for junior and senior girls who are interested in careers in the field of home economics, the scheduled events will acquaint these students with the different aspects of college-level home economics.

The day will include a fashion show featuring MTSU co-eds as models. Billie Weatherford, Sheryl Patterson, Delores Sutton, Becky Wheeler, and Ann Adkins will model styles to be seen in the coming months.

A luncheon for the visitors will be served in the Tennessee Room of the Student Union at 12 noon. Regina Jones, MTSU senior state chairman of the College Chapter Section of the Tennessee Home Economics Association, and Miss Home Economics for 1967-68, will preside.

Officers of the MTSU chapter are Rosanne Jones, president, Joy Felker, first vice-president; Cathey Clemmer, second vice-president; Dorothy Raney, secretary; Clariiece Waggoner, treasurer; Linda Moore, public relations chairman; Ginger Brooks, special projects chairman; Judy Whitmore, historian; Madolyn Sapp, parliamentarian; and Jeanice Seals, ASB representative.

Bulletin

Nominations for 1967 MTSU Homecoming Queen were presented in an all-campus assembly held yesterday at 11 a.m. in the Dramatic Arts Auditorium.

Those nominated for the honor were: Patricia Duncan, Elaine Lehr, Billie Jean Meeks, Jensi Peck, and Sandy Santiago.

Vet's Club Stages Show

The MTSU Veterans' Club will stage a talent show and beauty contest at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, October 24 in the Dramatic Arts auditorium. Tickets are $.75 in advance and $1.00 at the door.

According to Tom Watts, the talent show will consist of approximately 10 acts including songs and piano routines. "Charlie" Philips, last year's second place winner, will be featured with a trio. Last year's winners, "the Crowd," consisting of George Clinton, Pat Prahl, and Jack Gilpin will provide intermission entertainment. The show will feature Captain Midnight of WMAK in Nashville as M.C.

The beauty contestants are Martha Sue Plunk, Lyon Hall; Bonnie Hearn, Reynolds Hall; Kay Carver, McHenry Hall; Virginia Buchanan, Miss Mary Hall; Mary E. Blevin, Monohan Hall; Claudia Waller, Schardt Hall; Kitha Nan Ashby, Rutledge Hall; Carol Jane Parker, Judi Gallagher, Suzette Lee, Hi-Rise Hall; Sharon Sanford, Wood Hall, and Sandy Bozeman, Felder Hall.

Pat Ries, last year's beauty contest winner, participated in the Miss Tennessee Pageant.

Parks Pens Two Articles

Two articles by Dr. Norman Parks, chairman of the department of political science at MTSU, will appear in THE NATION, a respected political science periodical. The first of the articles is in the Oct. 17 edition, and the second will appear early in November. Both deal with the American Telephone and Telegraph Company and its 22 subsidiaries.

The first article describes American Telephone and Telegraph Company as a 32-billion dollar colossus which has developed into a form of corporate socialism no longer analyzable within the traditional economic concepts and the crisis of regulation now confronting state and local governments.

The Federal Communication Commission's role is criticized for conforming to the traditional criteria in regulation as originally established by the ICC. Parks points out that this approach is almost totally inadequate for dealing with the revolutionary changes in the communications industry. He insists that the FCC has confined itself within a "self-made prison." The broadly drawn act of 1924 gave the FCC a relatively free hand in developing the executive procedures which contemporary conditions demand states Parks.

Parks views the outcome of current FCC hearings as decisive for the future of communications developments. "If AT&T is permitted to monopolize the records transmission market, the world's largest economic giant will experience a growth in wealth, power

Baugh, Waller Tabbed Frosh Cheerleaders

Claudia Waller and Sandra Baugh, both sociology majors, were selected as freshman cheerleaders from a field of approximately 30 last Thursday, according to Judith A. Milholland, Assistant Dean of Women.

Miss Waller, the first alternate, graduated from Donelson, Tenn., and was a cheerleader during her senior year there. In commenting on the differences between her high school cheerleading experiences, and the experiences here, she states, "It's just that there are more people to cheer before." Besides her cheerleading duties, she was an active member of the Civitans, Chorus, and the Pep

WALLER

Club in high school. Miss Waller plans to enter the field of social work.

Miss Baugh, a graduate of East Ridge High School, Chattanooga, was selected as the second alternate. In high school, her activities included basketball, work on the school annual, the Jr. Lioness Club, Jr. Red Cross, Student Council, and school band.

At MTSU, she is a member on the Midlander staff, and is active in ASB Government work.

BAUGH

Chaplin Next In ASB Movie

A Charlie Chaplin movie, the next film in the ASB cultural film series, will be shown at 7:30 Wednesday, Nov. 1 in the DA Auditorium.

This series, according to ASB president Paul Womack, will trace the history of movie-making from the silent film to the present.

THE MOTHER AND THE LAW, a silent comedy, marked the first film in the series.

Graduate Fellowships Offered

An experimental program, seeking to unlock both private and public money available for graduate fellowships for prospective college teachers, will be set in motion by the Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation this year. The Foundation again will offer 200 dissertation fellowships to enable students in the humanities and social sciences already in graduate school to complete their doctoral studies "with all deliberate speed."

Both programs are made possible through a two-year, $2.4 million grant from the Ford Foundation, announced today by Sir Hugh Taylor, dean emeritus of Princeton University's Graduate School and president of the Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation.

Through its 15 regional selection committees, the Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation will choose 1,000 top candidates as WOODROW WILSON DESIGNATES. The names of those who merit graduate fellowship support, together with a list of those recommended for Honorable Mention, will be forwarded by February 15, 1968, to the deans of all graduate schools in the United States and Canada, many of whom have already pledged to make offers of financial assistance to the selected candidates.

Direct grants of Woodrow Wilson Fellowships for first year graduate study are expected to be made to 50 candidates on the Designate List from Canadian colleges and 100 from United States colleges, according to Sir Hugh.

"This fall, 945 Woodrow Wilson Fellows are beginning their graduate studies with our full support. In 1968, fewer fellowships from the United States government and from private foundations will be available," Sir Hugh explained. "Next year, the National Defense Education Act graduate fellowships probably will number only 3,400 instead of the 6,000 for the current year. There is now a shortage of committed young men and women of ability. It is more important than ever before that the best available talent be discovered, encouraged, and nurtured and that the profession of college teaching receive its share of talent."

The network of college professors, deans, and student advisers already established by the Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation will be used in selecting the most gifted potential college teachers in the United States and Canada.

Just as the National Merit Scholarship Corporation identifies for scholarship donors the most promising high school graduates, so the Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation will identify the top-flight college seniors for graduate fellowship awards.

T.O. to Hold Tea For Applicants

Tau Omicron, an honor society for junior and senior women, will hold a tea for prospective members in the Tennessee Room of the SUB on Sunday, Oct. 22.

All prospective members will go in rotation from 2 p.m. until 6 p.m. Sunday afternoon. According to Jensi Peck, Tau Omicron president, the prospective members will be notified in the mail as to the time they are to arrive.

Refreshments will be served, and the prospective members will have an opportunity to meet the present members of Tau Omicron.

Miss Peck stated that approximately 100 questionnaires for membership were returned.

Tau Omicron sponsors a scholarship for a junior or senior woman and offers tutoring services besides other activities.

The officers for the year are Jensi Peck, president; Kittie Myatt, vice-president; Sandra Elam, secretary; and Lee Crowell, treasurer.

er and social significance that will stagger the imagination," Parks states. "State regulation is almost powerless against a giant that exceeds the total wealth of the average state," Parks writes in demanding leadership of the federal government.

The second article will focus on the problems of regulation in state capitols. Dr. Dallas Smith, widely known communications authority at the University of Illinois, in an advance review found the second article "a significant contribution to the understanding of this 'nitty-gritty' business of state regulations."

CAP's Wheel Knots, BSU Lead Flag Football Leagues

Flag football got into full swing at MTSU last week and the powers in each league have begun to show themselves.

In league A, Chi Alpha Pi has emerged as the cream of the crop with four consecutive wins. They hold victories over Sigma Delta Zeta (40-0), Lambda Psi (41-6), Sigma Tau Omega (12-6), and Phi Epsilon (19-0).

In league B, the Wheel Knots (3-0) and the Roadrunners (1-0) remained undefeated through Monday's games. The Wheel Knots have rolled over the Gators, 20-18, the Colt 45's, 14-8, and the Weightlifters, 30-0.

The Roadrunners have downed Smith Hall, 27-7, in their only contest so far.

In league C, in games played through Tuesday, the BSU is the only team with an unblemished slate, having won their first two games. They edged by the Rejects, 6-0, then posted their second shutout by downing the Headhunters, 7-0.

MTSU Looks To Austin Peay For First Conference Win

Middle Tennessee will try to rise up out of the OVC cellar Saturday night by downing the Austin Peay Governors at Clarksville.

With the two teams having a combined record of 2-7, nothing will be at stake except a little personal pride and the satisfaction of a win.

The game is not expected to suffer for lack of an OVC championship to play for, however. The Austin Peay-MTSU rivalry has been fanned to a red-hot state in the past few years.

MTSU, which holds a 17-2-2 edge in the series, will be a slight favorite, despite the fact that the game will be in Clarksville. The Raiders were favored in both 1964 and 1966, however, and were beaten both times. The score was 9-7 in '64 and 13-7 last year.

Austin Peay should be a welcome relief for the Raider defense since they are prone to move the ball on the ground. Gov quarterback Carl Williams, the 1966 OVC total offense leader, has thrown the ball for only 16 completions in the first four games.

Having the week off last week, the APSU coaching staff was in the press box for the MTSU-Murray game. Head coach Bill Dupes, seeing firsthand the success Murray had with the forward pass, may make some changes this week in the Gov game plan.

One advantage that Austin Peay will have is a week's rest. They didn't play last weekend after upsetting Morehead in Morehead the week before, 10-8, for their first win of the campaign.

Injury-wise, MTSU is still pretty crippled. Joe Jones and Taylor Edwards are still out. Benny Arp will return this week, but won't see much action. Gene Carney is still at half speed because of a rib injury. Several players are hampered to various degrees with minor ailments.

Even with the injuries and the unexpected losing records of both teams, it should still be a whale of a ball game in Clarksville Saturday night.

AROUND THE OVC

by PHIL HICKS

Junior fullback Dickie Moore set a new OVC scoring record by scoring 4 touchdowns as Western Kentucky rambled past Tennessee Tech, 56-0, this past week. Moore scored on runs of 45, 19, 15, and 2 yards. His total yardage for the game was 133 yards in 13 carries.

Western placekicker Tom Atwood set a school record and tied the OVC mark when he booted eight out of eight conversions.

Murray State, relying on the passing of quarterback Larry Tillman, routed MTSU by the score of 35-14. Tillman set OVC records for attempts (51), completions (28), yardage (425), and 4 touchdown passes.

Something which also should be noted is that, out of 51 pass attempts, there were no interceptions. Dickie Thomas and Larry Matthews scored for MTSU on 1 yard runs.

In a non-OVC tilt, Eastern Kentucky rolled over Northwood, 55-0, as Arnold Marsh caught four touchdown passes. Eastern broke the OVC total yardage gained record with 629 yards.

Besides setting a new offensive record, Eastern set school records in yards passing, most passes attempted, most passes completed, most first downs, most first downs passing, most touchdown passes caught, most touchdown passes thrown, and most yards passing by an individual. In other non-OVC games, Morehead clipped Kentucky State, 20 to 14 and Chattanooga nipped East Tennessee 15 to 14.

East Tennessee gave Chattanooga a lot more trouble than had been expected. Trailing, 12-0, going into the final quarter of play, the Buccaneers rallied for two scores and a 14-12 lead.

The Mocs refused to panic, however, and a Roger Catarino pass to Angelo Napolitano put the ball on the ETSU 25. A couple of plays later, Chattanooga's freshman placekicker, Jim Cooper, kicked a 37 yard field goal to give the Mocs a 15-14 win.

and reviewed the work of voluntary associations of local governments in the Councils of Government in Texas, Atlanta, Washington, D.C. and elsewhere.

Both of the major speakers are experienced in the "arena of practical politics." Mr. Bragg is a member of the Tennessee General Assembly; Mr. Clauch is an authority on county government, long time head of the Arnold School of Government at Southern Methodist University and a former member of the Texas Legislature.

"People back home must send pick and shovel men to the General Assembly," Mr. Bragg said in explaining that much of modern legislation depended on the work of intelligent legislators who were willing to get down and dig for themselves. "Everyone has an idea about how to run the government and save millions of dollars until he is actually in the forum," Bragg said. He pointed out that everyone today wanted more and more from government and that in Tennessee education, highways, health services and debt services took 91 cents out of each tax dollar. "Where can you cut without crippling needed and essential service," he asked.

Dr. Clauch identified six major areas of social science discipline as (1) American government, (2) comparative government, (3) political theory, (4) public law, (5) public administration and (6) international relations.

He said that political science was the master of all sciences and that students who expected to teach should have courses in local, state, and national government in order to understand the things that make the front page of the newspaper.

He reviewed some of the most pressing problems of local government and such proposed solutions as annexation, consolidation, multi-function districts, regional planning and inter-local co-operation. Although inter-local co-operation may be the less efficacious, Dr. Clauch said, it seems to be the one most feasible at the present time. He then spoke in detail about several such plans in which he had participated or investigated.

Dr. Quill E. Cope, president of the University, welcomed the some 50 political scientists. "It is appropriate to see teachers and others interested in political science in Tennessee organized for the purpose of encouraging better ways of doing things — particularly in local government," he said. Representatives from 16 Tennessee colleges and universities and several other agencies related to government participated in the organizational meeting Friday and Saturday at Middle Tennessee State University.

Dr. Norman Parks, Chairman of the MTSU political science department, was temporary chairman and co-ordinator for the meeting.

Dr. Lee S. Greene of the University of Tennessee and Dr. Clay Tucker, dean of the school of Arts and Sciences at MTSU, were other Friday speakers.

The Saturday program was devoted to discussion of grants and financial aid and assistance for research and equipment in teaching political science. Discussion leaders included Dr. Douglas Carlisle, University of Tennessee; Dr. David Grubb, MTSU; Dr. Richter Moore, East Tennessee State; and Dr. Robert Aden, MTSU.

Adoption of a constitution and election of officers concluded the meeting Saturday.

Gripe Line Set Up By Paper Staff

Do you have a gripe? Do you feel nobody on campus wants to listen to your problems? The SIDELINES staff (in a continuing program of public service) is attempting to alleviate this problem.

On Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday nights from 7 to 8:30 p.m. there will be SIDELINES staff members on the Gripe Line. Dial extension 271, identify yourself, and gripe.

The most frequent gripes and the most unusual gripes will be featured in the SIDELINES.

THERE ARE NO BAD TEACHERS; THERE ARE ONLY BAD STUDENTS

The academic year has only just begun and already one thing is clear: you're not ready for college.

What, then, should you do? Should you throw up your hands and quit? I say no! I say you must attack, grapple, cope! I say America did not become the world's leader in motel construction and kidney transplants by running away from a fight!

To the question then: You say you're not ready for college. You're too green, too naive. You lack maturity.

Okay, the answer is simple: get mature. How? Well sir, to achieve maturity you need two things:

- a) a probing mind;
- b) a vest.

A probing mind will be quickly yours if you'll remember that education consists not of answers but of questions. Blindly accepting information and dumbly memorizing data is high school stuff. In college you don't just accept. You dispute, you push, you pry, you challenge. If, for instance, your physics prof says, "E equals mc squared," don't just write it down. Say to the prof, "Why?"

This will show him two things:

- a) Your mind is a keen, thrusting instrument.
- b) You are in the wrong major.

Ask questions, questions, and more questions. That is the essence of maturity, the heart and liver of education. Nothing will more quickly convince the teachers that you are of college calibre. And the tougher your questions, the better. Come to class with queries that dart and flash, that make unexpected sallies into uncharted territory. Ask things which have never been asked before, like "How tall was Nietzsche?" and "Did the Minotaur have ticks? If so, were they immortal?" and "How often did Pitt the Elder shave?"

(Incidentally, you may never know the complete answer to Pitt the Elder's shaving habits, but of one thing you can be positive: no matter how often he shaved and no matter what blades he used, he never enjoyed the shaving comfort that you do. I am assuming, of course, that you use Personna Super Stainless Steel Blades, a logical assumption to make when one is addressing college men—which is to say men of perspicacity, discrimination, wit, taste, cognizance, and shrewdness—for Personna is a blade to please the perspicacious, delight the discriminating, win the witty, tickle the tasteful, coddle the cognizer, and shave the shrewd.)

(I bring up Personna Super Stainless Steel Blades because the makers of Personna Super Stainless Steel Blades pay me to write this column, and they are inclined to sulk if I omit to mention their product. I would not like to see them unhappy, the makers of Personna, for they are fine ruddy men, fond of morris dancing and home brewed root beer, and they make a blade that shaves closely and cleanly, nicklessly and hacklessly, and is sharp and gleaming and durable and available both in double-edge style and Injector style.)

(And from these same bounteous blademakers comes Burma-Shave, regular or menthol, a lather that out-lathers other lathers, brother. So if you'd rather lather better, and soak your whiskers wetter, Burma-Shave's your answer.)

But I digress. We have now solved the problem of maturity. In subsequent columns we'll take up other issues, equally burning. Since 1953 when this column first started running in your campus paper, we've tackled such thorny questions as "Can a student of 19 find happiness with an economics professor of 90?" and "Should capital punishment for pledges be abolished?" and "Are room-mates sanitary?" Be assured that in this, our 14th year, we will not be less bold.
