Disabilities bill draws little MTSU support

SHERI KING
Contributing Writer

A lack of awareness produced only 52 MTSU signatures on a letter that was sent to Tennessee's congressmen Thursday, urging their support of the Americans With Disabilities Act.

The Americans With Disabilities Act is a bill pending in Congress that is designed to prevent discrimination against the handicapped.

Less than one percent of MTSU's 14,136-student population, which includes about 200 handicapped students, signed the letter, which was posted in the office for Handicapped Student Services on Oct. 19.

About 10 of the signatures were those of students who appear on the mailing about it," Lannom said, explaining why she hadn't signed the letter. "I haven't had a chance to get in the work place, and I've not

"The big problem is awareness — with handicapped as well as those who aren't handicapped."

— John Harris

list for handicapped students.

Despite this fact, John Harris, director of Handicapped Student Services, said that he was neither surprised nor disappointed by the number of signatures.

"The big problem is awareness — with handicapped people as well as those who aren't handicapped," Harris said. "We're talking about young people, and it's hard to get them involved."

A major aspect of the bill is that it is designed to prevent discrimination against the handicapped by employers. Harris said most of MTSU's handicapped students had not yet entered the work force and encountered that kind of discrimination. "Now they're still not getting what they want," he said.

Harris's conclusions were supported by Bonnie Lannom, a visually impaired sophomore majoring in animal science.

"I really don't know a lot been faced with discrimination yet.

"I know I will be in the years to come. I guess something needs to be done to inform the public."

Dawn Overstreet, a non-handicapped companion of Lannom's, also cited a lack of awareness as the reason she had not signed the letter. Overstreet said she reads to Lannom, gives her tests and walks from classes to the dorm with her.

Harris said that he and members of Sigma Delta Sigma, a special interest group on campus for handicapped students, had considered soliciting signatures in the basement of Keathley University Center, but had declined because they wanted signatures from informed supporters only.

"Just because it is for the handicapped is not a reason to sign it," Harris said.

In the future, Handicapped Student Services might host a seminar featuring a lobbyist for such legislation to educate the public, Harris said. ■

Students to present bills at capital

ELAINA WELLS
Contributing Writer

Todd Burnett, MTSU's governor of the Tennessee Intercollegiate State Legislature (TISL), along with 18 other MTSU students will present bills on the House and Senate floors at the state capitol.

These bills will be presented in front of a mock legislation made up of students across the state — from approximately 26 various colleges and universities.

A few of the bills that will be presented are:

- A resolution to ask the Tennessee Board of Regents to start a statewide policy on recycling. This bill will be presented by Leslie Higinbotham, vice chairman of the State and Local Government Committee.
- Michael Turner will present a bill proposing a sentence reduction for all prisoners who learn the basics — reading, writing and arithmetic.

• A bill proposing a constitutional amendment that will make a statewide lottery legal will be presented by co-sponsors Higinbotham and Taylor Baker.

"I felt that TISL is a good way to voice opinions to state leaders and it also helps you to learn parliamentary procedures," Burnett said.

Each student going to TISL will individually present his/her bill through a committee and then it will go on to be presented on the House and Senate floor.

Throughout the three-day period, only 10 of all the bills presented will be deemed as priority legislation to the state legislature.

"A number of the bills that have been presented at TISL with the exception of some minor changes have eventually become laws," Cathy Miller, MTSU's TISL director said.

"One such law is the seatbelt law that originated at TISL a few years back," Miller added. ■

Committee selects 'Sidelines' editor

KIM HARRIS
News Editor

Jill McWhorter, 21, was appointed Friday afternoon as the Sidelines spring editor by the Student Publications Committee.

McWhorter was the only applicant for the position.

"It was very disappointing. Getting a position by default is sort of disheartening," McWhorter, a journalism major emphasizing in magazine, said.

"It would have been nice if more than one person had applied," committee chairperson Sara Dunne said. "The committee had no reservations in appointing Jill."

McWhorter is currently the managing editor of Sidelines, following a promotion from the position of features editor.

A more professional front-page masthead, stylistic changes, different and varying newspaper layouts and a larger staff are some of the things McWhorter will be pursuing for the paper.

Jill McWhorter

"I'll be talking to journalism classes, maybe even a few of the basic composition classes to attract writers outside of journalism who would want to contribute," she said.

"There has been a long-standing concern for a revision in the budget of Sidelines to provide incentives for staff. Other media jobs in the area are syphoning off staff," McWhorter said.

McWhorter also cited practicums as an incentive, since journalism students are required to have either a practicum or an internship to graduate.

"Practicums are available and that needs to be publicized because people are not aware of that fact," she said.

"I don't think it matters that Jill was the only candidate," Ken Salter, current editor, said. "She has experience at both Sidelines and the real world that she can apply to put out the best paper possible."

"I think the paper's getting stronger and I expect that trend to continue under Jill," Chris Bell, Opinions editor, said. ■

Ceremonies mark POW/MIA Day

STAFF REPORTS

The Air Force ROTC will sponsor a Prisoner of War/Missing in Action (POW/MIA) Day Tuesday, Nov. 14, to honor the over 2,331 men still unaccounted for from past wars.

John Deering, former Marine Corps Gunnery Sergeant and POW of five years during the Vietnam conflict, will speak about his experience and on behalf of those missing at 4 p.m. in front of the Cope Administration Building.

A flag vigil from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. will feature a posted guard in front of the American flag, flying at half mast at the place where Deering is to speak.

Following Deering's presentation, the Air Force ROTC will perform a visual retreat of the flags, ending the service. The public is invited and encouraged to come and observe the commemorative ceremony.

Stones River clean-up Nov. 18 to unite campus groups' efforts

RITA ROBERTSON
Contributing Writer

In an attempt to raise awareness about the condition of the Stones River, the Biology Club will sponsor a clean-up of the river on Saturday, Nov. 18.

"The clean-up will cover a two or three mile area beginning at the Walter Hill Dam and ending at the Mona Public Youth Area," said Jill Burgess, Biology Club president.

Members from Tri-Beta, the Chemistry Club, ROTC and the Association of Non-Traditional Students will also be participating in the effort.

"We invite anyone interested to come out and join us. It's gonna be a lot of work, but I think we'll have a lot of fun, too," Burgess said.

The Campus Recreation Department is donating 15 canoes to assist clean-up in the river.

"For safety reasons we can only allow two people per canoe, but we will have plenty to do on the shore as well.

"The area is in really bad shape. Trash is in the trees as well as in the river and on the ground," Burgess said.

After clean-up is complete, the Biology Club will adopt this section of the river through the Tennessee Scenic Rivers Association. The club will be responsible for monitoring the condition of the water through water samples and kick-net samples.

"The area is in really bad shape. Trash is in the trees as well as in the river and on the ground." Jill Burgess

"The kick-nets allows us to collect samples of insects and crustaceans in the water so that we can inspect them as well," Burgess said.

There will also be a cookout for those who participate in the clean-up. ■

STUDENT DISCOUNTS

3 smart ways to help pay for college.

Here's how the Army Reserve Alternate Training Program can help you pay for college.

If qualified, the Montgomery GI Bill can provide you with up to $5,040 for current college expenses.

If you obtain a qualifying student loan, you can get it paid off at the rate of 15% per year or $500, whichever is greater — up to a maximum of $10,000. Selecting certain specialty training can result in a $20,000 maximum.

And here's how you can make even more part-time money while in college. Take Basic Training one summer. The next summer, complete skill training at an Army school. You'll earn over $1,250 for Basic and even more for skill training. Then you'll train with your Army Reserve unit near college, usually one weekend a month plus two weeks a year. You'll earn over $85 a weekend to start.

Think about it. Then think about us. Then call us today:

OPINIONS

US should support Soviet reforms

As unbelievable as it might have seemed only a few weeks ago, the East German government took steps this week towards allowing free passage between East and West Berlin. The call to "tear down the Berlin Wall" is now actually being carried out.

1989 will be known as the year Soviet Bloc leaders finally began to realize that their system did not work. Real and important changes are being made all over the map.

In a sense, communist leaders are simply responding to the will of the people as shown by the massive demonstrations that have swept through East Germany this fall.

As Americans, however, it's hard not to be a little cautious about these changes. After spending the past 40 years with the Soviets as our primary enemies, trusting the "evil empire" may take a little while.

But we must support Gorbachev in his efforts and the efforts of reformers throughout Eastern Europe. Last week, former President Gerald Ford told a packed house at MTSU that his advisors gave the Russian leader only a 50/50 chance of staying in office and said there are still hard liners waiting for these reform movements to fail. By supporting rather than sitting on the sidelines, we will at least help to give change a fighting chance.

The motives of Gorbachev and others may still be in doubt, but right now they're the only game in town. This may not be democracy as we know it, but it's a lot closer than where these nations have been. ■

Letters to the Editor

Black pride not the same as racism

Dear Editor:
We would like to comment on the letter written by Mel Carter in the November 6th issue of Sidelines. He states that the tee-shirts baring the slogan "It's a Black Thing-You Wouldn't Understand" are promoting racism.

We strongly disagree with this assertion. By displaying slogans such as "It's a Black Thing" or "Black by Popular Demand", we as a people are attempting to foster racial pride among ourselves and not encourage racial hostility.

Unless you are black, you couldn't possibly understand the significance of slogans such as these.

The new consciousness that is being displayed by African-Americans with tee-shirts or African emblems, is a giant step toward achieving a positive self-image for an entire race of people that have been taught for so long to believe that they are inferior.

We do, however, agree with Mr. Carter on the statement that as we approach the 21st century it is ridiculous to continue to debate the issue of being black or white. But before achieving a state of racial harmony, all races must realize their own identity. If wearing a tee-shirt reinforces this identity, then it should not be misconstrued as a racist action.

As we move forward to the next century, let us all acknowledge the words of W.E.B. Dubois, "I believe in pride of race and lineage and self."

Thank you.

Library computerization a good idea, but...

Dear Editor:
Pertaining to the computerized library system... It's GREAT. It's WONDERFUL. REALLY!!!

But...being familiar with computer systems I would like to know if anyone has taken into consideration computer down-time and limited library terminal access?

We are all familiar with the workings of the mainframe the university uses and several other computer systems on campus and also with their various and sometimes inconvenient down-times due to inner workings, electric failure, hardware/software failure, etc. Also individual terminals are not above occasional and temporary down-time independent of the actual system.

So...are we to assume this library system past all fault? Are they going to keep some type of book-order access system available (for instance, keeping the card catalog handy)? I'm sure us students are fairly familiar with the Dewey Decimal System, but surely only a few have memorized it! Also, is there a provider in the contract for a minimum amount of down-time, like the company promises to have the system up and running very quickly? Is there a technical help service ready for questions, perhaps on site in the case of an emergency?

I'd really like to know their plans, y'know? It cannot be a possibility that they would expect desperate last-minute writers and long-term researchers to sit on their bums at the library during a down-time listening to the calm reassurances of the library workers.

Also, how many terminals are available AT the library? Everyone will HAVE to use the terminals, whereas everybody doesn't look up the same letter at the catalog, i.e. there can be a large number of people milling around the catalog whereas if there are a limited number of terminals AT the library there will be lines and some would like to know how long they will be.

Letters to the Editor

Those with library complaints advised to leave MTSU

Dear Editor:

We are writing in response to a letter by Mr. Jay Goonetilleke in Sidelines on Nov. 6th. If he was not so selfish, he would use his mental capacity to understand that may be it was not useless to close the library on Homecoming Day. If he needed to go to the library, then let him go to the public library or even the Nashville library. Mr. Goonetilleke, the world does not evolve around you! If we worked in the library we certainly would not want to work there on Homecoming Day.

You also accuse the school of wasting money. Again, expand your mental capacity and realize that football draws money to the school to pay for expenses. If you enjoy spending your time in the library, then we are sorry. Most people enjoy gaining experience through social activities, including football games, and other campus activities. Not all of us live in a book. We live in a world where experience is necessary and communication is pertinent.

You complain about how other schools give more money to education compared to MTSU. Have you seen the cost of these schools Mr. Goonetilleke? They are outrageous! Maybe if they would give money to athletic programs then they would have revenue to lower their costs for students. You may like these high prices. If this is so, "get the hell out of Dodge" and go there. We do not want to be around someone who can not have fun. If you want more educational programs then start them or start packing to go North.

You assume that the football players disregard their studies. Quite the contrary. To play a sport takes an entire new talent in excess to what they already have. The athletes at this school have necessary requirements to meet that enable them to play college sports. If they do not meet these requirements they are subject to probation or release from the teams. They also have strict requirements on social activities. They have no visitation rights, a roomcheck curfew at 10 p.m., a very little free time as it is. So please do not make such a vicious and unintelligent statement before you find out the facts.

In closing, we are sorry that you were upset, but if you were not so selfish, then maybe your life could be a little more rewarding. We are also sorry that you obviously have no social life. We may not speak for the majority, but we know that we are not alone in our beliefs. Mr. Goonetilleke, we have a solution for you - if you don't like our school, then leave.

Student wins state Miss Black and Gold title

LUCAS JOHNSON
Special to Sidelines

Look out Miss America! Look out Miss Universe! Your crowns are at stake.

"And now for the moment you've all waited for..."

Standing 5-foot-3 in a long, black rhinestone and silver sequined dress that shadows every curve, Nicole Porter, a 20-year-old pre-physical therapy major at MTSU, waits patiently with hope that she will hear her name called.

"The new Miss Black and Gold is..."

Each aisle of the theatre is filled with a deathly silence, as every eye and ear becomes focused on the announcer.

"...Miss Nicole Porter."

Showers of tears flood excited eyes, as the audience cheers Porter's beauty and poise.

The 1989 Miss Black and Gold Pagent was sponsored by Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity, Inc., Kappa XI Chapter, MTSU, and was held in the Tucker Theatre on Oct. 25. The pagent involved seven other contestants, and was divided into five categories: casual wear, swim wear, talent, evening gown wear and interview.

Although she did well in each category, Porter's display of talent was truly outstanding. She did a monologue using a poem by Nikki Giovanni titled "Ego-Trippin'," in which she filled the audience with laughter and left them in awe of her articulative perfection.

"Nicole excelled in all areas of the competition," explains Wendell Bowler, a judge in the Miss Black and Gold Pagent. "She showed poise and grace in the evening gown and swimsuit events. She also displayed great versatility in the talent competition, and she responded well to the question and answer phase of the pagent by displaying extreme confidence."

"Sure, I was confident and very excited," exclaims Porter, "but I had no idea that I was going to win. It was a total shock."

Porter's glory did not stop at Tucker Theatre, however. She went on to the State Convention and participated in the Miss Black and Gold Pagent in Jackson, Tenn., which was sponsored by the Association of Tennessee Alpha Men.

It was there, on Saturday, Nov. 4, that she defeated ten other contestants and obtained her second glory as Miss Black and Gold on a state level.

"I felt that Nicole overall did the best of all contestants that entered," says Michael James, pagent director for the Oct. 25 Miss Black and Gold. "She maintained consistency, which carried her on to the state level and enabled her to claim the victory there."

Born in Columbia, Tenn., Porter recalls her two most memorable inspirations.

"My mother greatly inspired me when she said, 'No matter what you do, whether you fail or succeed, I will always be behind you,'" recalls Porter. "And Wilma Rudolph was truly inspirational because of her desire to excel. No matter what happened, she kept pressing on."

Porter also has an inspirational philosophy of her own.

"In order to succeed and to love others, you must first love yourself," claims Porter. "And then, and only then, will you be successful."

"Isn't she lovely ladies and gentlemen — our new Miss Black and Gold."

The road of pagentry does not stop for Porter with the winning of the state crown. On March 24, 1990, she will compete in the Alpha Phi Alpha regional Miss Black and Gold Pagent in Tampa Bay, Fla. ■

'Boys Next Door' opens this week

From Staff Reports

The latest production from the MTSU Theater Department, The Boys Next Door, opens Wednesday in the Arena Theater.

Tom Griffin's comedy-drama about a group home for four mentally-handicapped men, has already sold out for this weekend's evening performances.

Directed by Deborah Anderson, with Assistant Director Craig Core, the play's cast features Tim Meadors, Richard Browder, Lee Blair, Derek Whittaker, John F. Lennon, Susan M. Cummings, Mike Reed, Lee Ann Myers and Tim J. Davis.

The Boys Next Door will be presented in the Arena Theater at 8 p.m. Nov. 14 — 18 with special afternoon performances at 2 p.m. Nov. 18 and 19. The matinees were added after the weekend performance sold out in just two days.

Ticket are $3.50 for general admission, but are free to MTSU students with a valid ID. To make reservations, call the box office at 898-2716 from noon to 5 p.m. weekdays.

Seating is not reserved in the Arena, so those with reservations should arrive no later than 30 minutes before the performance to insure getting a good seat. ■

PRSSA campaign sweet success

JILL McWHORTER
Managing Editor

Approximately 800 people visited the Rutherford County Agriculture Center Saturday to attend the MTSU PRSSA's "NutraSweet Fun N Food Festival," according to project co-chairperson, Penny Boyett.

A "Cook Without the Calories" cook-off was held in conjunction with the event and 53 cooks entered their edibles cooked with NutraSweet sweetener.

Winner of first place, which included a microwave oven and an appearance on Channel 5's Talk of the Town, was Janet Davis with her tasty raisin bar entry.

Second place winner, receiving two framed prints, was MTSU student Stacy Stone, with an entry of strawberry cheesecake. MTSU graduate student Breanna Bell's French apple swirl won a $25 gift certificate from Chesney's with her third place finish.

Several activity booths were set up in the Agriculture Center featuring games such as "Equal Bingo" played with sweetener packets as markers, "Price is Right," in which prices were guessed for NutraSweet products

Smokers urged to quit on Great American Smokeout

JOHN MOSELEY
Staff Writer

This year more than 320,000 Americans will die prematurely of diseases related to smoking.

Smoking is an equal opportunity killer that does not discriminate between race, age or sex.

Lung cancer accounts for more than 28 percent of all cancer deaths in this country, making it the single largest contributor to the total cancer death rate. According to the American Lung Association, more than 54 million Americans are smokers.

Why all the statistics?

On November 16, the annual American Cancer Society's Great American Smokeout takes place in an attempt to educate people about the dangers of using cigarettes and other tobacco products.

The day will be marked at MTSU with a display set up in the classroom area foyer at Murphy Center offering pamphlets and tips on how to quit or how to help a friend quit smoking.

There are well over 30 million ex-smokers living in the United States today and all smokers on the MTSU campus are urged to become a part of the living statistics.

On Thursday, Nov. 16, put away the lighter and the pack, the can of snuff, the pack of chewing tobacco, the pipe or the cigar yourself or with the help of friends to encourage you.

Try something different — get caught up in some activity like running, or come by the display in Murphy Center and at least look at the statistics.

It's your life. ■

Raiders clinch tie for crown

Control Proctor in win over Murray

KEN SALTER
Editor

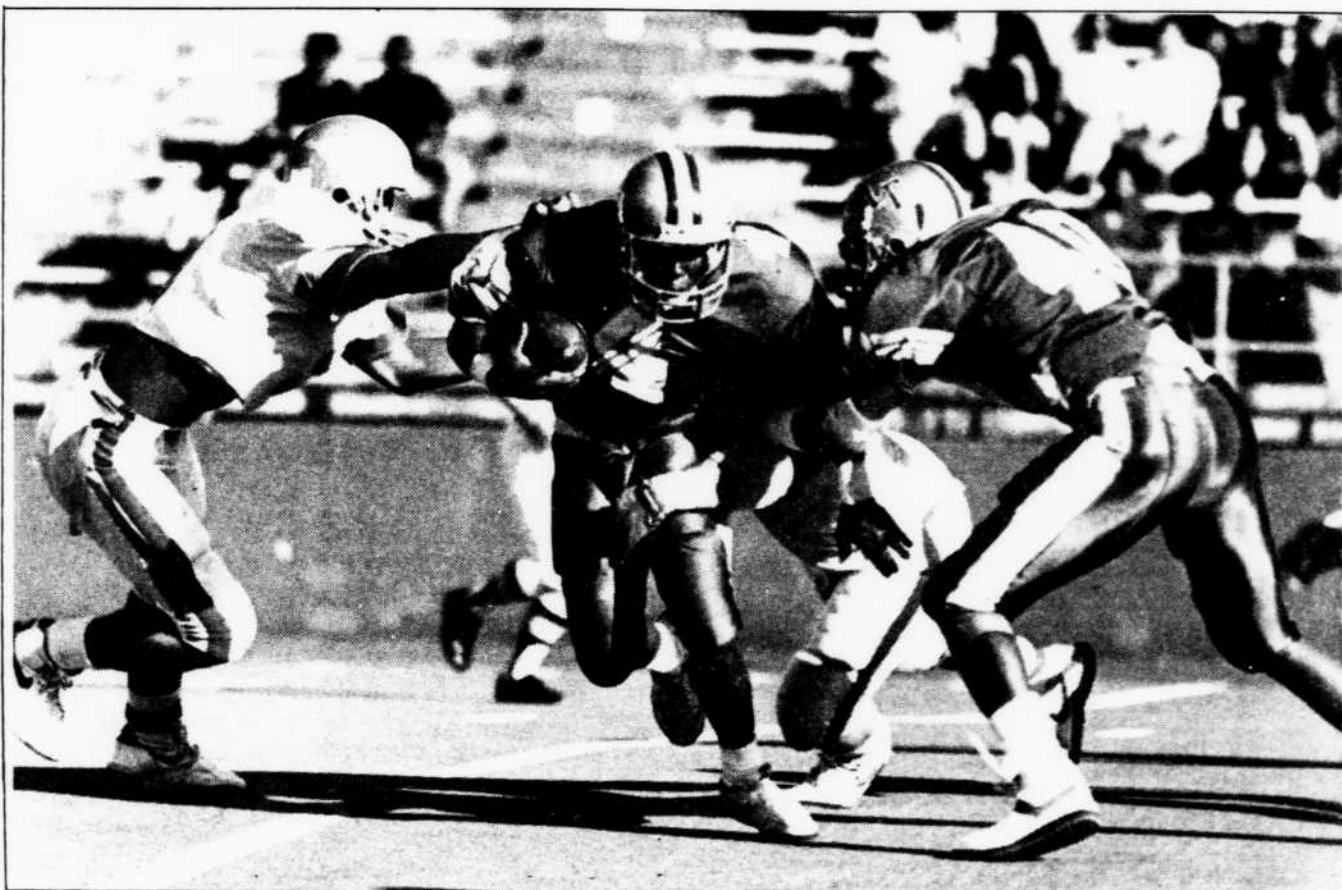

Big plays on both offense and defense proved to be the difference as MTSU's Blue Raiders defeated Murray State 32-15, clinching at least a tie for the Ohio Valley Conference championship. The win raised MTSU's record to 5-0 in the OVC and 7-3 overall, while Murray falls to 2-3 and 5-4-1. After moving out to an early 12-0 lead on a pair of field goals, Murray State cut the lead to just five on a 7-yard touchdown pass to Michael Proctor to Greg Arterburn with just 4 minutes remaining in the half. With the half winding down, MTSU was faced

After a scoreless third quarter, the Racers cut the MTSU lead to just three after they recovered a Joe Campbell fumble at the MTSU 28-yard line and drove in for the score. They added the two-point conversion to make the score 18-15.

MTSU refused to fall, however. They took ensuing kickoff and drove 62 yards in seven plays for what proved to be the deciding score.

Joe Campbell rushed for 51 yards on the drive, including a 15-yard run for the score. On the day, Campbell racked up 167 yards on 20 carries.

Offense answers when Racers call

KEN SALTER
Editor

There was a role reversal of sorts in MTSU's 32-15 victory over Murray State, Saturday. The Blue Raiders offense came to the forefront when the game was close, twice turning back Murray State rallies by answering a Racers score with one — or more — of their own. MTSU's offense answered the first Murray call when Wade Johnson broke a 50-yard touchdown run on a third down and one situation late in the second quarter after Murray had cut the lead to 12-7. "It felt good to come through in the clutch," said quarterback Phil Ironside. "We were just inches away all day. Things just weren't quite clicking." Ironside didn't have the best passing game percentage — he hit just 11-of-25 attempts — but he totalled on a third and one at the 20-yard line. Wade Johnson took the handoff and charged up the middle to get the first down, but he was tackled through the Murray State line and was off to the side for a touchdown. As a result, MTSU took an 18-7 lead into the lockerroom. "All we wanted was the ball and he went 50 yards," Boots Donnelly said. "We get the right play, and we get the seam, there's nothing to stop our running back, once he breaks the line of scrimmage."

Donnelly said. "Just about every decision he made was sound. He was very serious about his effort today."

The defense also was at peak form. They intercepted Michael Proctor five times. Greg Pollard led the parade, picking off two of Proctor's errant tosses, while Marty Carter, Jimmy McCamey and Mike Caldwell each had one.

Proctor, who entered the day as the OVC leader in passing yards averaging 260 per game, was limited to

Key losses could stop Lady Raiders from claiming eighth straight OVC title

KEN SALTER
Editor

If streaks are made to be broken, this may be the year that MTSU's Lady Raiders fall from their perch atop the Ohio Valley Conference and end the nation's longest conference championship streak at seven.

At the recent OVC basketball media day, a poll of the league's coaches and athletic directors picked Tennessee Tech to take the top spot, with Morehead State and Murray State finishing second and third respectively.

MTSU was a close fourth behind Murray. The rest of the league is expected to have Eastern Kentucky in fifth, Austin Peay sixth and Tennessee State in the seventh slot.

MTSU's pick as the fourth place team isn't a total surprise. Gone are the three seniors who were the backbone to last year's squad.

Tawanya Mucker, the OVC Player of the Year, MTSU's leading scorer and rebounder, and the school's second all-time leading scorer graduated.

The other two losses to graduation were, Sandy Brown, the NCAA record holder for most consecutive games with a made three-point basket, and Lianne Beck, a player coach Lewis Bivens called "a coach on the floor" graduated and entered medical school at the U.S. Naval Academy.

MTSU's leadership burden this year falls on the only two starters who return from last year's 21-6 squad. They are Stephanie Capley, who averaged 11.2 points and 6.2 rebounds per game last season, and Christy Scruggs, who averaged 8.3 points -per game and led the team in assists and three-point field goal percentage. However, the Lady Raiders will be without the services of Scruggs for four to six weeks due to a knee injury.

"Capley is a great leader both on and off of the floor," coach Lewis Bivens said. "Christy is going to be out for a while, but we feel we have the depth at point guard to get by until she gets back."

Capley's will not only be looked upon as the team's leader, but she will also be expected to carry more of the scoring burden.

"I worked a lot more on my inside game over the summer," Capley said. "We have a good weight program and I feel a lot stronger than I did last year. I'm more comfortable in the post than I was in the past."

Other returning players expected to contribute this season are Shana Wright and Libby Newton. Wright was expected to vie for the point guard spot last season, but a broken arm forced her into a reserve role. Newton played in every game last season primarily as a backup to Scruggs at the point guard.

Top newcomers to the Lady Raiders include Julie Morrison, a 5-8, freshman from Boone Kentucky, Pippa Gibson a 5-9, junior college transfer Columbia State and Becky Hall, a 6-4, junior out of Emmanuel Junior College in Franklin Springs, Ga.

With all of the new players, fans can expect a different style of play from the Lady Raiders this season.

"We will be looking to run the ball and play a pressure-type defense," Bivens said. "In the past we have walked the ball up the court and set up in a halfcourt offense. With our lack of overall size, we are going to take advantage of our improved athletic ability and look to run more."

Tennessee Tech returns all five starters and eight players overall from last year's OVC Tournament champion and NCAA Tournament team.

The Golden Eagles are ranked in most pre-season top 20 polls and could be a national threat in addition to an OVC power.

Three seniors head the Tech attack. Center Melinda Clayton, point guard Shawn Monday and Annetta Peterson have all been through the OVC wars and have their opening round win over South Carolina to build this season around.

Morehead State was picked to finish second in the OVC much to the surprise of coach Loretta Marlow.

Marlow has seven players back from the team which finished third in the OVC.

Kelly Downs, the teams only senior, and sophomore Julie Magrane, a member of the OVC all-freshman team last season, head the list of returnees.

Murray State has a new coach, but Larry Wall isn't walking into a program that is in trouble.

Seven players return from last season's OVC Tournament runner-up and Women's NIT participant.

Top returning players for the Lady Racers are Michele Wenning, who averaged 13.6 points and 8.5 rebounds in contest as a sophomore, and Karen Johnson, who averaged 12.8 points and 6.5 boards.

Eastern Kentucky, who is coached by former MTSU mentor Larry Inman, was picked a close fourth behind MTSU.

Inman has seven freshman on this year's edition of lady Colonels along with two junior college transfers.

Austin Peay and Tennessee State were picked sixth and seventh respectively. Both teams are in a rebuilding process and are still a few years away from challenging for conference crown.

Tennessee State has enlisted former Fisk University head coach Teresa Lawrence to guide them on their new building which will center around center Ann Thomas.

Austin Peay's offense will center around senior Shand Maxwell, who averaged 16.5 points and 9.4 rebounds last season, and junior Tracie Mason, who averaged 14.7 points and 9.4 rebounds. ■ going to get to Proctor, so someone else had to pay. Marty Carter is beat up good.

The victory over Murray assures the Blue Raiders of no worse than a tie for the OVC championship. If they defeat Tennessee Tech in Cookeville next week, they are the outright champs.

If they lose and Eastern Kentucky wins, they will share the title, but MTSU would receive the automatic bid to the Division I-AA playoffs by virtue of their victory over the Colonels. ■

Campus Recreation seeks teams and players for indoor soccer league

Teams and individuals are currently being sought for an indoor soccer league which will start after the Thanksgiving break.

Campus Recreation is sponsoring the league and the league appears to have a lot of interest.

"We already have quite a few teams," said Scott Hughes, president of the MTSU Soccer club. "We want to get as many people as possible signed up before the break to we can get started right after."

Hughes said that it isn't necessary to have an entire team to participate. Individual players are welcome and will be teamed together.

For more information, call Scott Hughes at ext. 3217 or Glen Hanley at ext. 2104. ■

Blue Raiders to battle Ft. Hood in exhibition basketball game

MTSU's Blue Raiders will host the Ft. Hood Tankers in their first home exhibition game tonight.

The game will at 7:30 p.m. in Murphy Center.

"Ft. Hood always has a very solid team and should present a good challenge for us," MTSU coach Bruce Stewart said. ■
