Carter attempts party unity

President Jimmy Carter visited Nashville yesterday in a move to show party unity and to rally support behind the campaigns of gubernatorial candidate Jake Butcher and senatorial candidate Jane Eskind.

"Andrew Jackson has made Tennessee a homecoming place to all democrats, and I am glad to be here," Carter said.

"I have come here today to get you to work hard for democratic nominees," he added.

He then cited several former statesmen from Tennessee and their accomplishments such as Cordell Hull, Albert Gore Sr., Dick Fulton and others who had served the state well.

Carter commended senator Jim Sasser for the job he has done in office. He went on to add that when Jane Eskind came to Washington, Sasser would become the senior senator from Tennessee.

"There's only one thing wrong with Jim. He's too independent. When it comes to deciding what I want and what the state wants, he always goes with the state," Carter said jokingly.

The President then told the crowd that they had a true treasure in Jake Butcher.

"He has run a positive campaign. He has not run a negative campaign," he said.

Carter then praised Jane Eskind for coming so far. "Nobody thought Jane had a chance," he said, "but when she comes to Washington, she will come with a clear eye and a cleaning broom sweeping. She'll bring with her the true spirit of Andrew Jackson," Carter said.

Carter then went on to mention some of the accomplishments that have been made recently.

The progress on the SALT treaties, the tentative peace in the Middle East, a stronger NATO and a top rated national defense were

Finalists chosen, republicans win

The five finalists were announced Wednesday night for the homecoming court.

They were: Mary Pat Cassidy, Chi Omega; Barbara L. Gibson, Delta Sigma Theta; Julie Rungee, Sigma Alpha Epsilon; Jeanni Stalcup, independent; and Andrea Tolleson, Gamma Beta Phi.

Mark Anthony, director of homecoming, said that the votes were counted by himself; Riley Clark, the election commissioner; Karen Hicks, co-director of homecoming; and four members of the election commission. "It took four hours for the group to count the votes," he said.

Riley Clark said, "Just 1,726 people voted, which is more than in the last presidential election. That adds up to just about 17 percent of the student population voting."

"A lot of people voted for just one or two people. There was a lot of group voting also," he added.

In the gubernatorial and senatorial elections, Lamar Alexander defeated Jake Butcher 725 to 361. Howard Baker received 655 votes and Jane Eskind received 361.

Students fall under Kreskin's spell

by Lisa Human

"Look!"

"Flying saucers!"

"Can't you see them?"

"Over there," screamed several MTSU students who were under Kreskin's power of suggestion Tuesday night.

In less than 30 minutes Kreskin had students seeing birds and cats and screaming "Extra, Extra!" at the sound of a whistle.

Kreskin then told his subjects they would see flying saucers outside the DA Auditorium 20 minutes after the show. After his stage performance, the audience met Kreskin outside the DA and watched the students under his power point and gasp at the flying saucers.

"I did not hypnotize anyone," Kreskin said, who added that he does not believe in any form of hypnosis and has offered a $20,000 reward for anyone who can prove that he uses hypnosis or has paid assistants in his show.

"It's all the power of suggestion," said Kreskin, who devoted the second half of his show to this strange phenomenon.

Kreskin asked for volunteers from the audience to help illustrate the power of suggestion. The participants were asked to imagine a ring in their hands. When Kreskin counted to three, the rings turned into birds or other animals. Students began petting their animals and chasing them around the stage. One boy's bird urinated on him, or so he thought.

"These animals are very real to them," Kreskin said. When Kreskin snapped his fingers, the animals disappeared, much to the amazement of their owners.

Believe it or not, it really happened.

"Is someone thinking about Aug. 28?" Kreskin asked. A girl from the audience admitted that the 28th was someone's birthday and she had been thinking about it. "You have a nickname involved," Kreskin added. "Do they call you Smudge?" Naturally, Kreskin was right again.

"How does he do it?" murmured the audience as he called out the 13 numbers in the girl's computer science number.

Kreskin then passed out paper to everyone in the audience and asked them to write down some things they wanted to remember. The papers, which were put into envelopes, were not collected by Kreskin, but were kept by one person in each row of the auditorium.

The audience cheered as Kreskin

continued to prove that "the mind can be tapped."

"Is someone thinking of Florida or California? Did you have a motorcycle in Florida? Who's thinking of the star of David? Are you thinking about your jacket?"

Kreskin, who was seldom wrong in his observations, continued to demonstrate the ability to read minds when he found a $2,500 check hidden in a girl's sock in the audience.

Four people from the audience were randomly selected to hide the check. After instructing the group to hide the check anywhere in the auditorium, except on themselves, Kreskin left the stage with an escort.

The audience, tense with anticipation, waited while Kreskin searched for the check.

"You have no idea how good it feels to have this back," Kreskin said as he waved the check triumphantly in his hand after about 10 minutes of searching.

mentioned.

"As long as I am in the White House we will stay number one in defense," he said.

Carter also noted the fact that America has been put back to work. He said that he was working on a sound energy policy and a deregulation of industry.

Carter also said that four years ago the United States had a 66 million dollar deficit.

"Next year we will have it cut in half, and at the same time we will have lower taxes and better services," he said.

"I cast my vote for you when I ran for President. My strength comes from you," he concluded.

Also speaking to the crowd were Jake Butcher, Jane Eskind, and Governor Ray Blanton.

"Tennessee in 1976 adopted Jimmy Carter as her favorite son. In 1980 Tennesseans will reaffirm their confidence in your leadership, and support Jimmy Carter for president," Eskind said.

"As democratic senator from the state of Tennessee, I will support his goals for the nation from 1980 on," she added.

"I believe that Tennessee and the nation need to cooperate with you in your goals to stop inflation," Jake Butcher said in his welcome to the President.

"This is a time for statesmanship, not stubbing blocks," he stated.

Governor Ray Blanton said it was a rare occasion for Tennessee to be able to welcome a President, and that this would be his last opportunity as the governor of the state.

He also said that he had recommended the President at the Southern Governors Conference, for the Nobel Peace Prize and the conference had voted unanimously to endorse him.

Blanton also noted that since Carter had been in office, no American had shed blood in war, and commended the moral example which Carter was setting for country.

Society reorganized

The International Relations Society, a club to foster and encourage interest in international affairs, is in the process of reorganizing at MTSU.

Plans are being made to send a delegation to model United Nations in either Mobil, Ala. or St. Louis, Mo. in the spring. The delegation will represent a country assigned to them beforehand, and will play the role of that country at the model UN.

The club will meet on the second and fourth Thursday of each month at 2:00 in NCB 211.

Audit privilege won't be used as 'loophole' again

The audit privilege will not be used, as it was rumored, to change a student's status and bypass evaluation by the instructor, Jack Carlton, vice president of academic affairs, said.

Carlton met with the deans earlier this month to discuss the audit situation.

"The deans agreed that there were other methods to be used, such as the withdrawal and the incomplete, for these purposes," Carlton said.

Although Carlton said it may have happened in the past, it is very rare and should not happen again, he said.

Marion Wells, professor of biology, said one of his students last spring switched to audit without his consent.

"I think there were some that used this in the past, but I've talked with the deans and I'm satisfied that everything is as it should be now," Wells said.

The question of the audit privilege being used to bypass evaluation by instructors was brought up when a loophole in the university catalog was noticed by Roy Clark, American Association of University Professors chairman.

The loophole, according to Clark, would allow students to switch to audit up to the final exam week and bypass instructor's evaluation.

Committee members selected at meeting

Tom Duncan and Brenda Spain were appointed members of the infirmary extension hours committee in Tuesday's house meeting.

Because of lack of a quorum, no bills were acted upon. However, a statement by ASB President Mike McDonald dealing with the resolution passed at last week's joint meeting asking for the resignation of Chief Justice Ricky Morehead and Attorney General Eddie Davis was read to the members.

EDITORIAL

Closed court basis cloudy

ASB President Mike McDonald's decision not to ask for the resignations of ASB Attorney general Eddie Davis and Supreme Court Chief Justice Ricky Morehead, is based only upon a Helth, Education and Welfare interpretation of The Family Education and Privacy Act of 1974 and not upon judicial precedent.

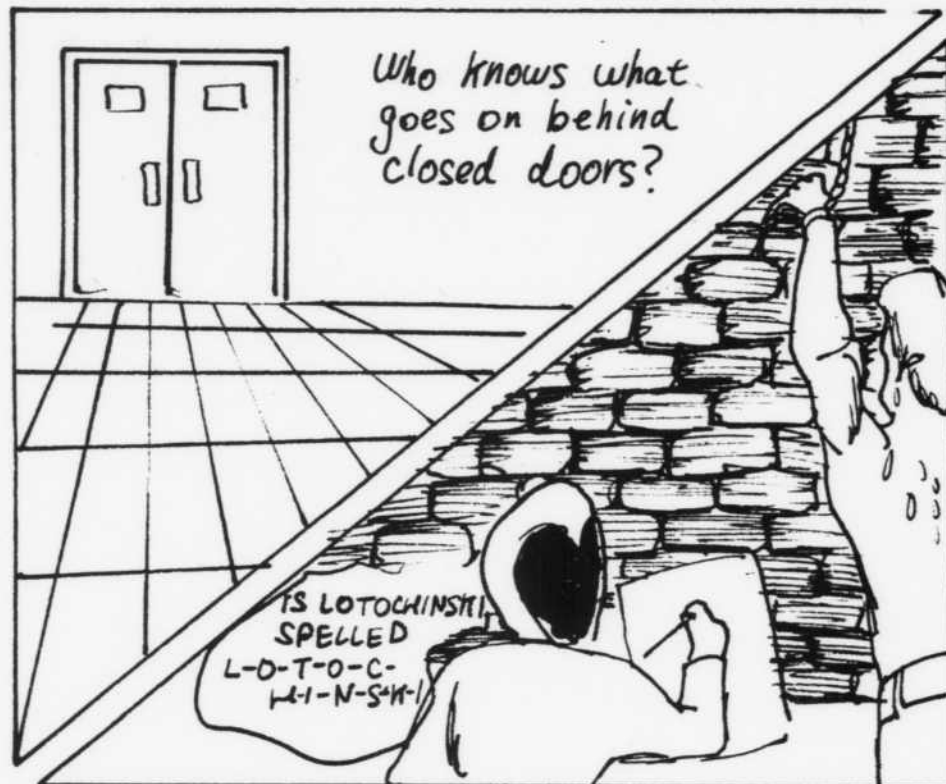

The interpretation came out of a Florida court in the case of Marston v. Gainesville Sun Publishing Company, Inc., 1976. The court issue is whether or not the press and public should be allowed into an honors court. There is no clear answer at this time as to whether this definition would apply to a regular court session such as the Supreme Court here at MTSU.

This leaves open questions as to what might happen if the argument was taken to court.

Although the "Privacy Act" concerns the access of the press and the public to student files, it says nothing about access to information that will be placed at a later date in the files of the student.

At this point, McDonald has chosen to take the interpretation of HEW in this situation. The question still remains of whether that decision was right.

Neither the Federal Act nor the Tennessee law has enough cases in court to be totally clear on such issues as this.

Only a test case will be able to supply a plausible answer as to whether the people and the press have a right to know what goes on behind these closed doors.

OPEN FORUM

Resignation request part of smear campaign

by Mike McDonald
ASB President

On Tuesday Oct. 17th, the legislative branch of the ASB met in a joint session to pass, among other things, a resolution requesting the resignation of the attorney general and chief justice of the ASB Supreme Court.

While the legislative branch reacted emotionally to such legislation instead of being responsible enough to find the facts, I, as ASB President, have labored long hours and invest my decision upon information I have received from the parties involved, gathering the "facts" rather than gossip, which the three senate sponsors of the resolution utilized at Tuesday's joint legislative session to obtain support for their cause. Once the truth in this matter has surfaced, these individuals and all others primarily involved in this "smear campaign" upon the judicial branch will be dealt with through the proper administrative and constitutional channels.

The resolution charges that the rights of James Lotochinski, a candidate for freshman senate, were violated by the attorney general and the chief justice. The sponsor of this resolution cites Article II, Section 1 and 6 of the ASB Constitution as the areas where the two judicial officials violated Lotochinski's constitutional rights.

Article II, Section 1 of the ASB Constitution states the following: "as citizens, students enjoy the same freedoms as are guaranteed by the Constitution of the United States and the State of Tennessee."

Lotochinski upon notification of his rights, was provided with counsel (Public Defender Mack Kelly) both before and after the hearing.

Lotochinski, upon notification of the charges being brought against him, was granted and did confront those accusing him of violating the Comprehensive Electoral Act of 1977—the ASB Election Commission.

Lotochinski was provided with the opportunity to plead his case through Chief Public Defender Mack Kelly to an impartial and objective body—the ASB Supreme Court.

The prosecution, Attorney General Eddie Davis, requested a closed hearing, and Public Defender Mack Kelly agreed with the prosecution's request. The Supreme Court cleared the courtroom and, upon reconvening, granted the request of the attorney general and the public defender for a closed hearing.

The Supreme Court's decision to grant such a request is by no means going to set a precedent for MTSU or judicial bodies in colleges and universities across America. The Supreme Court's decision to grant a "closed case" for Lotochinski is supported by the Family Education and Privacy Act. This Act calls for any judicial proceedings which are a part of a student's educational process to be closed unless the defendant (student) files a written request to have the hearing open to the press and to the public.

Even though the Lotochinski case was an internal violation of the ASB and the ASB Comprehensive Electoral Act of 1977, and not a disciplinary matter, the Supreme Court went a step further by allowing the act to apply in the Lotochinski case. Subsequently, the charges that the Supreme Court did not grant Lotochinski procedural fairness (as stated in Article II, Section 6 of the ASB Constitution) in the administrative of disciplinary measures not only do not apply, but also are untrue and alleged without any legal basis.

There has been no reasonable proof shown to me that the sponsor of this legislation has sufficient evidence that the chief justice of the ASB Supreme Court or the attorney general of the ASB violated the constitution rights of Lotochinski. They (among others) were not at the hearing.

When the Supreme Court granted the prosecution and the public defender's request for a closed hearing, the press and the general public were banned from the courtroom. I wasn't allowed in; neither was Paul Cantrell, Dean of Students, and adviser to the Court and the ASB.

I feel confident that if any irregularity had come about before, during, or after the Lotochinski case, or any case, Dean Cantrell would have promptly informed the Supreme Court of such an error. Both Dean Cantrell and myself are pleased with the conduct and disposition of the Court.

As ASB President, I refuse to allow any member or members of either the executive or legislative branch of the ASB to utilize threats of impeachment in order to overrule the decision of any court within the judicial branch. There is a separation of power between the three branches of student government, and as long as I am ASB President, the check and balance system will prevail.

I challenge the legislative branch to begin acting (and not reacting) to issues and concerns that affect the ASB internally and externally in a little more responsible, conscientious, and respectful manner. And while I challenge the others to pursue the investigative process of impeachment proceedings, it is also my wish that each representative will research and evaluate the evidence at hand by the senate sponsors, and the sufficient base of support that the judicial branch (in this case practically the entire Supreme Court and the attorney general) has from the Dean of students, vice-president of administration, the Rescue handbook, The Family Education and Privacy Act, and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Earle should just stay with basketball coaching

Last week I gave my viewpoints on the football situation here at MTSU. A lot of other players feel the same way as I do about the problems that have plagued football at this university.

The reason that I'm bringing this up again is to briefly explain to someone, by the name of Jimmy Earle, my reasons for feeling the way that I do. For all of you who aren't familiar with the name I've just given, he's the head basketball coach here.

On Wednesday of last week, Mr. Earle took it upon himself to make some remarks to the football team concerning me. Mr. Earle stated that after the team gets the game ball after the victory on Saturday, they should come find me and shove it somewhere.

The first thing that I want Mr. Earle to know is that, whenever he wants someone to find me and shove a football somewhere, he should bring it himself because I'm not hard to find. A lot of players have come up to me and said that I shouldn't worry about the article that I wrote because I told the truth. I also was informed that after you made your little speech a very small portion of the players clapped, but when they realized that your speech wasn't as effective as you might have hoped for, they just looked as the other players were doing.

I want you to realize that your speech didn't come close to gaining the popularity with the team that you were hoping for. When a coach makes a statement like the one that was put in The Tennessean about us, then there's not much to be happy about.

Those few that clapped in favor of your speech may feel like they can't make the team at Delaware, but you did realize that a lot of players feel they can make Delaware's supernatural football team.

Your being a coach should help you to understand a player's feeling after being put down like that, but I guess all mediocre coaches think the same, or so it seems. Mr. Earle, you haven't been in the weight room with us during winter workout, or up on the track in Murphy Center running until your legs feel like rubber. You weren't around in August to go through the pains of two-a-days.

You weren't around for the two weeks that we had to get up at six a.m. to get ready for practice and not return to your room until about ten thirty a.m. I didn't recall seeing you for those two hot weeks of two-a-days and then have to listen to your coach giving others the impression that he's coaching a lot of nobodies. I don't want to hear you saying you had to go through it because players are a lot different now than in your playing days.

I don't know you or what type person you are, but if you feel coaches should make those kind of statements about his team then I'm more than happy. But I don't feel that way.

From what I've heard about you over the years that I've been here, you shouldn't be running your mouth anyway. With the great talent that has been had here and still is here, I can't figure out why you have so much trouble with Austin Peay. With the talent on this ball club and with the loss of Austin Peay's best players, I'm sure that they won't give you any trouble this year. I realize that emotion plays a big role in such games but with the talent your team has, a couple of victories over Austin Peay shouldn't be too difficult.

In my final remarks to you, Mr. Earle, take care of your basketball team and leave other's business alone.

Thank you so much for your attention, Mr. Earle.

Player unfairly treated

To the editor:

I Reginald Upshaw, who was on the MTSU football team for three years, quit because I just got tired of what was going on. After three years of hard work, I deserve better than what I got as a player. I never missed a winter workout or fall practice until this year when I finally got tired of what was going on. I worked too damn hard to get treated like this.

At the end of spring practice I was on the second string, playing defensive safety. When I came back this fall I was demoted to fourth team without any explanation of any kind. We had only been working out for one day in shorts and then the next day I was demoted.

I am not the only one treated this way. There are others. I feel that I wasn't given a fair chance, and that someone else should know what was going on besides myself.

Coach Ben Hurt made a statement earlier in the week saying that we don't have any talent, he doesn't have that much time for recruitment and that we don't have any players that could make Delaware's team.

Well, to counteract what he said, I want to say that MTSU in the three years that I have been here has had worlds of talent. But the players just got tired of the system and left. If you don't believe me, look at all of the players that have quit in the last year or two that were on scholarships or even a walk-on like myself.

We had five top ball players who quit this spring that got fed up with what was going on. That shows you that something is wrong. He says he doesn't have time for recruitment. Well, all state supported schools in Tennessee with the exception of U.T. Knoxville, have to coach, teach and recruit like he does. You don't see them bitching about losing because of those reasons.

Last, but not least, we don't have any players that can make Delaware's team. I doubt if we have any coach who could make it as a coach. It seems that the way the system is, we are not coaching to win but coaching not to be embarrassed by the opposing team. The way Delaware has jumped on us the last two years, it should have been against the law.

Blacks needed in campus groups

To the editor:

This letter is written as a plea to black students to become more involved in student government and other instrumental organizations. I know that there are a few aspects of this university that do not suit you too well, so instead of talking about them, let us join together and support one another. Get involved in organizations and run in future elections.

Then we can affect changes and put our ideas to work for the betterment of our student body and for the betterment of ourselves as individuals and as organizational participants.

I have a deep respect for Mike McDonald because his position is a prime example of what a determined, self-assured, assertive individual can achieve.

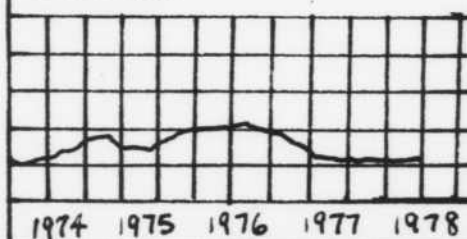

Sure it takes work, but that is all a part of success. Nothing is worth having, if not worked for.

I shall be running in the next ASB election and I hope to see a lot more blacks participating. I may not win the election, but at least I'll have some satisfaction in trying. How about you?

Collegiate Future Farmers of America and Kappa Delta were the grand champions in the Little International Competition sponsored by the Block and Bridle Club on Wednesday at the New Horse Barn.

Twenty-one Greek and independent campus organizations participated in the day-long competition attended by 800 people.

Following FFA in the overall men's competition were: Alpha Gamma Rho, second; Kappa Sigma, third; Sigma Phi Epsilon, fourth; and Pi Kappa Alpha, fifth.

Chi Omega finished behind Kappa Delta to capture second place in the women's division. Delta Zeta took third; Alpha Gamma Rho Little Sisters, fourth; and Alpha Tau Omega Little Sisters, fifth.

Janet Hendly won the hot pants contest as a representative of Pi Kappa Alpha. (Janene) King sponsored by Kappa Delta Big Brothers and Kappa Sigma's Susie Mangrum took second and third place respectively.

Little International Competition was based on a point system in which team members earned five points for their club by placing first in an event, four points for second, and so on. The grand champions were determined by the final point tabulation.

In the men's individual events, Sigma Chi placed first in the pole climb; the Biology Club, second; and ATO, third.

The tobacco spitting title was captured by Kappa Alpha. Pi

Kappa Alpha finished second, and FFA, third.

Sigma Phi Epsilon outlasted Pi Kappa Alpha in the bucking barrel event. Kappa Alpha took third.

In the tug-of-war, Alpha Gamma Rho muscled FFA out of the event's first place position.

In the women's division, Chi Omega outdistanced everyone in the tobacco spitting contest, leaving Kappa Delta with second and AGR Little Sisters with third.

Kappa Delta captured first in the blind man's wheelbarrow race, followed by Delta Zeta's second and Chi Omega's third.

Lanas Smith was named Grand Champion Cattle Showman. By first qualifying as Beef Champion, she edged out Dairy Champion Mary Lou Mather to gain the title.

In horse showmanship, Jim Pewitt took honors as Equitations Champ and Mary Lou Mather captured the Showman Champion title.

In the first class dairy heffers division, Mary Lou Mather took first; Cheryl Ringler, second; and Andrea Houston, third. Second class winners were Deborah Moore, first; Shawn Benson, second; and Denise Jones, third.

In horsemanship, Jim Pewitt received honors in riding huntseat over fences; Vicki Lawson, huntseat on the flat; Marie Vaughn, stock-seat; and Kelly Rice, saddle-walking feet. James Stanfield was named stock showman; Delaine Freeman, saddle showman; and Mary Lou Mather, Hunt showman.

Homecoming queen reminiscesMemories of 40's shows difference in MTSU

In 1940, MTSU was MTSC (Middle Tennessee State College), enrollment was approximately 400, there were a dozen cars on campus and Nancy Wyson (Hudson) was Homecoming Queen.

"Things are certainly different now," said the 59-year old Mrs. Hudson. "Elections were held by popular vote. No girl was sponsored by a sorority or other such club; we held a general student body assembly and nominated candidates."

The court included two maids, she added. "We wore white cardboard crowns which were decorated with royal blue crepe paper," Hudson said. "I bought some cheap blue material and made all of us a cape with a stand-up collar."

The royal float was a white carriage borrowed from the old Tennessee College and was pulled by two white horses, she remembered. "I asked Billy, a janitor on campus, to be my coachman. He wore a high top hat and a swallow-tail coat for the occasion. I never found out where he got them!" laughed Hudson. "There were also two young ladies riding in back, holding something on pillows."

"At the end of the parade we had to leave the carriage to be presented with roses on the reviewing stand. The stand was located on the court square and Charles Brown, our student body president, did the presenting," she said. "I remember I had to crawl through a window of the carriage because the door stuck and I was wearing a hoop skirt, and that didn't go over very well!"

Memories of the football game and other homecoming ceremonies are a blur to her. "All I can recall about the game is that it was freezing," Hudson related. "My mother made me wear snuggies, which were a type of loose-knit long underwear. I was so embarrassed, but in the end I was grateful because it was so cold."

Hudson graduated in 1941 with an English major, and has traveled much since that time. For the past 21 years she has worked for WTVF in Nashville as assistant promotional advertisement manager, but always finds "some excuse to come back."

"Each time I visit I try to compare the past with the present," she said. "Sometimes it's laughable, sometimes it's sad. Back then, there were only half a dozen buildings on campus, and everyone knew everyone else by name. We all loved and cared for one another, but I guess that's kind of hard to do now."

Campus trade fair to be held next week in UC by business fraternity

Pi Sigma Epsilon a national professional fraternity in sales and marketing will present a campus trade fair Oct. 31 and Nov. 1 in the UC.

Fifteen area businesses will be represented in the fair in order to acquaint students with their locations and the services they offer to the community, Denis Rainey, president of Pi Sigma Epsilon, said.

Businesses such as Audio Masters, Burkhart's, The Butterfly Boutique, Friedman's and the Peddler will appear in the fair.

Free haircuts will be given throughout the fair by Middle Tennessee Barber College and Nathan's.

Insurance companies will be in the fair to distribute literature to interested students.

No products will be sold during the fair, however, some of the businesses will be giving free samples of their products.

The fair will be open to all people from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. both days.

Parachuting part of St. Jude's week

St. Jude's week, beginning Tuesday, will include a dunking machine, a beer party, and a walk-a-thon in order to raise $5,000 for St. Jude's Children's Hospital.

As a hospital that does research on children's diseases, such as leukemia and Hodgkin's disease, St. Jude's is funded only through donations.

The fund-raising drive will be kicked off with a dunking machine in front of the U.C. on Tuesday from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. For only 25 cents a throw, students can dunk ASB President Mike McDonald and Panhellenic President Kate Moore.

"We'd like to try and get some faculty members up there, too," Brent Swick, co-chairman of St. Jude's Week said.

A parachute jump will also be held Tuesday. Gary Ellis, chairman of St. Jude's Week, will be jumping and possibly members of the MTSU Sport Parachute Club or the ROTC organization will be jumping.

We will have at least two people jumping," Swick said. The parachuters will land at 12 noon in the softball field behind Cummings Hall. This stunt is mainly for publicity.

...And the drive goes on! Wednesday night at 7, SAE will play against the Murfreesboro police in football. Following this game, Kappa Sigma will play ADP. The games will be played on Horace Jones field, admission is 50 cents.

A beer party at the Hot Wheels Arena from 9:30 p.m. to 1:00 p.m. featuring the live band "Punch" will take place on Thursday. Admission is $3.00 for guys and $2.00 for girls.

On Friday, fraternities and sororities will collect money through road blocks around Murfreesboro from approximately 3:00 to dark, according to Swick.

The most money will be made on the 15 mile walkathon which will begin on Saturday at 11 p.m. in front of the U.C. The walk will proceed to Tennessee Blvd., on down Clark, then to Memorial and Maple, on to the square, to East Main, and back to the U.C. twice.

The walk-a-thon is open to all who want to walk. Interested students can obtain a sponsor from anyone in Sigma Nu, the fraternity sponsoring St. Jude's Week.

Trophies will be awarded to the fraternity and the sorority that raise the most money.

Both teams share 1-2 OVC recordAustin Peay invades for Raider Homecoming

by Doyle Parham
Sports Editor

MTSU will be looking to snap a three-game losing streak this Saturday when they host defending OVC Champion Austin Peay.

"Austin Peay is always our arch rival, and I'm expecting one more game," MTSU head coach Ben Hurt said.

The Blue Raiders, coming off a 53-3 drubbing at the hands of powerful Delaware will try to bounce back and regain the form they showed against U.T. Chattanooga almost a month ago.

"Last year we were the only team to beat Austin Peay in the OVC, so I know they will try to ruin our homecoming game because it was at Austin Peay that we beat them, and it was their homecoming," Hurt added.

Austin Peay will bring a strong defensive unit led by All-OVC defensive end Ron Sebre. The backfield is considered one of the best in the OVC with All-Conference performers Mike Betts and Lynn Hailstock.

On offense, the Governors have some new faces and have been somewhat sputtery. Steve Brewer has taken over the quarterbacking spot from Randy Christophel. Freshman running back Donald Brown and sophomore Cosmo Cochran will start behind Brewer.

The Blue Raider offense could also be termed sputtery. The only points they could muster against Delaware came on a 49-yard field goal by freshman placekicker Gerald Robinson.

"Duane West has a bruised foot but will once again get the starting quarterback assignment, as will Robbie Rogers and Joe Bowers in the backfield. If Bowers is not fully recovered from an ankle injury another freshman, Gerald Bradley, will be his replacement," Hurt said.

The defense will be led by All-OVC linebacker Stanley Wright, who has been chosen defensive player of the week four times out of the six games played this season.

Defensive end Tom Smogorzewski should be recovered from an injury that he received against Delaware, but Safety Pat Siegfried and Tackle Gary Harton will still be out.

The kicking game should once again be interesting. MTSU boasts one of the top punters in the nation in senior Randy Saunders. The Gobs counter with speedy Joe Grimsley, one of the nation's top return men who will be a test for the Raiders.

"We must win this game to be in the upper bracket of the OVC since both of us have a 1-2 record in the OVC," Hurt said.

The Blue Raiders won last year's meeting 15-6 and have a 24-6-2 overall series advantage. The Governors won the 1976 game 21-9.

"I hope we can pull things together and make this one of the best homecoming games that we've seen in a long time," Hurt added.

MTSU cross country team host OVC tournament

"We have the chance to finish in the top four this year, and it will be the first time since 1971," MTSU cross country coach Dean Hayes said about the Ohio Valley Conference Championship coming up Saturday.

The OVC cross country meet will be Saturday and MTSU is hosting the tournament this year. The race will be held at the Veterans Hospital, and will start at 10:30 p.m.

MTSU's Gary Perry and Joe O'Loughlin will be the top men from MTSU, since both have won several races, and in the ones they lost they finished in the top five.

Western Kentucky will be dependent upon John Graham and James Groves, and Western is the top team in the OVC and is expected to

Another top contender in the race is Murray State's Jerry Odlin who was the top returning man from last year's team.

Eastern Kentucky also has Doug Bank who is returning from last year and finished seventh in the OVC, and he is a threat to the other schools.

Austin Peay, Tennessee Tech, and Morehead do not have any top men to finish the race.

"It will be a hard race for the boys, but I believe we can at least finish third in the race, and our main competition will be Eastern Kentucky," Hayes said.

"I hope to see a lot of people at the race because we need support just like the other teams on campus," Hayes added.

Player quits because of politics and coach

Disgusted with the way the team is losing and the politics that are involved on the Blue Raider football team, are the reasons offensive tackle Jeff Woodard gave for walking away from the team Monday.

"I feel that politics have kept us from winning and I will not play on a team that is involved with it," Woodard said.

Woodard 6'3", 230 pounds, a junior offensive tackle, was a walk-on last year to the Blue Raider team and has played most of the games sharing the position with Eddie Rowe.

"I believe the reason we have lost most of the games is because the coaches let the players they are partial to play the game, and that has played a bigger role in our losses than the quality or the type players we have," Woodard said.

Woodard is the third person to quit the team since the season has begun. Freshman center Mike Bush, fullback Lonnie Adams and quarterback Jerry Bates quit before the losing season started.

"We have been treated like a bunch of nobodies and I'm tired of being cut down by newspapers and people because it's not the team's fault that we have lost, but it is the quality of the coaches," Woodard said. "I will never go back on the team unless there are some major changes."

Coach Ben Hurt was not available for comment on the matter.

Pat Simpson expects goals of wrestling team

The fact that the wrestling team at MTSU isn't as well supported as some of the other area college teams, doesn't seem to bother fifth-year senior Pat Simpson.

"When I first came here the team didn't have anything. We have more now than ever before, so I don't let that bother me," Simpson remarked.

Pat Simpson

"Sure, I'd like to see the team better supported, but I think that will come. I'm sure our location has a lot to do with it. If we were located in a large city with 20 or more high school teams, then we could count on them for support," he added.

This will be Simpson's fourth year to wrestle at MTSU. He suffered an injury to his elbow last year, which caused him to red-shirt the season. Although his red-shirt was not intentional, it may have been to his advantage. "Anytime you can practice and work on your techniques for a full season, you have the chance to gain more strength," he admitted.

Simpson will be wrestling at 126 lbs., and was recently said to be "the backbone of this years team" by Head Coach Gordon Connell.

Simpson disagreed, "I don't think that's necessarily true. David Buck and my brother Frank are equally as good as me. They are both important to the team and they are both strong wrestlers."

Simpson said he enjoys being a part of the team because of the closeness that exists between the wrestlers and Coach Connell. "I think that's because he works out with us. He doesn't just supervise as some coaches do, he gets right in there with us. Plus, he's young, and that helps him understand us better."

Simpson expects this year's team to do as well as last year's. As far as personal goals, Simpson said, "I'm going to the NCAA and get even with the gut that injured me last year."

The wrestling teams' season will begin Nov. 7.

Ticket sale continues

Tuesday is the last day for last year's season ticket holders to renew their basketball tickets for the upcoming 1978-79 season.

Ticket manager Jim Simpson said all renewals not in his office by 4:30 p.m., Oct. 31 will be up for grabs by the people on the waiting list for this year's tickets.

Simpson added that anyone desiring to move their seats to another location should still go ahead and renew their tickets and make a note that they wish to move.

The ticket office will be open on Friday, Monday and Tuesday from 8 a.m. until 4:30 p.m.

"There will definitely be a sellout of the tickets so its very important to come by before Tuesday," Simpson said.
