

Committee adds statement on sex discrimination

by Michael Gigandet

To clarify university regulations regarding sexual discrimination by campus student organizations, the All-Campus Rules Committee added a statement to the Rescue handbook Wednesday night saying the school is in compliance with the Higher Education Act of 1965.

Some organizations which deny membership to persons on the basis of sex are supposedly protected by the act from governmental intervention.

Sexual discrimination under any educational program or activity receiving federal funds is prohibited in Title IX of the Educational Amendments of 1972 as proposed by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Subcommittee B Chairman Donnie Chambers proposed the Subcommittee C, which will consider housing regulations except "search and seizure," housing regulations for J and K apartments and general housing policies, will meet at 1 p.m. Monday in UC room 128.

Subcommittee chairman is Lisa Marchesoni, box 4769.

addition in his report to the committee.

Title IX had "created some concerns regarding organizations on campus that have sexually discriminating qualities in their constitution and/or by-laws," Paul Cantrell, associate dean of students, said.

He said the Higher Education Act of 1965 stated that some fraternal and religious organizations, as well as fraternities and sororities, were allowed "to be in operation as they are without any federal agency intruding on them."

The reasoning for adding the sentence, Cantrell said, was to state that the university was not only in compliance with Title IX but excluded organizations alluded to in the 1965 act.

"It doesn't exclude everything," Robert McCrummen, associate professor of education, said.

McCrummen said university facilities in general must be available to all sexes, but some organizations are by their nature for one sex only.

The committee voted unanimously to add the sentence.

They also unanimously approved adding a recognized religious organization director to the list of approved advisers for student organizations.

Because a religious director was not necessarily a member of the faculty or staff, Chambers asked the committee to delete the faculty-staff requirement.

After voting to delete, the committee moved on to correct various misspellings and typographical errors.

The committee voted unanimously to add an item to the lost and found section, which they said would encourage someone who found an article to turn it in.

At the end of the section they added "see theft," so persons would know that not turning in an article was "unauthorized possession" and that they could possibly face prosecution.

Vets to continue petition campaign

Encouraged by a "good response," the university's veterans will continue their petition campaign for increased benefits until 3 p.m. today in the UC, George Bateman, chairman of a veteran organizing committee, said yesterday.

The committee closed its tables yesterday with 514 signatures on a petition asking President Ford to sign into law a bill that would increase GI educational benefits by 23 per cent. Of the 514 names, 293 are veterans and 221 are non-veterans.

Ford has indicated he will veto such a bill, calling it "inflationary."

The committee is also asking veterans to sign a roster if they are interested in reorganizing the university's veterans club, Bateman said, and yesterday had 198 signatures.

"The petition is great, but it's just one thing," he said. "We've got to get organized so we can get something done."

"World War II vets got much more. We have to go to state schools because we damn sure couldn't afford to go to a private school, and then we still have to work," Bateman said.

"We're not complaining about that (working) so much, but it makes it awfully hard to go to school," Bateman pointed out.

"We want to get involved in everything we can," he said. "We can help each other and we can benefit this community since we are a part of it."

Bateman said the Veterans Administration representatives on campus are supporting the move to revitalize the campus veterans club. A meeting is scheduled at 12:15 p.m. Tuesday in room 322 of the UC.

An active club could pool dues to provide interest-free loans to veterans when their benefit checks are late, Bateman said. The group could also explain what benefits are available and help student veterans find housing, provide social activities and visit with veterans in area VA hospitals, Bateman said.

Student charged in marijuana bust

by John Pitts

Richard Booker, 17, a Nashville freshman, was charged with possession of marijuana Tuesday night after a search of his dormitory room in Beasley Hall produced a container of marijuana seeds.

The search was conducted by Murfreesboro City Police Officers led by Lt. Luther Avent.

"I was in the grill when some of my friends came and told me they (the officers) were over at my room," Booker said yesterday. "I didn't think I was going to get busted."

Booker said that when he arrived at his room, an officer showed him a warrant.

"They came in with a search warrant for cocaine and marijuana," Booker said. "One of the officers saw the bottle on my dresser and said 'Well, I guess you're under arrest.'"

Booker, while admitting that the seeds belonged to him, stated that he kept them for "decoration." The seeds had been in his possession "over a year" at the time of the arrest, Booker said.

Although the police "weren't harsh," Booker asserted that neither the police officers in his

Blanton, Demos sweep state

by Rick Edmondson

Democrat Ray Blanton, who collected 56 per cent of the vote, swept to victory over Lamar Alexander in Tuesday's gubernatorial election.

With the results received from all 95 counties in the state, complete unofficial totals are:

Blanton 577,716 (56 per cent)
Alexander 457,232 (44 per cent)

The Democrats captured two Tennessee Congressional seats previously held by Republicans. In the 3rd District Democrat Marilyn Lloyd defeated conservative Republican Lamar Baker. Lloyd, 45, campaigned heavily on the issue of the nation's economic ills in her drive to unseat Baker, who was a staunch Nixon supporter.

Harold Ford narrowly defeated incumbent Republican Dan Kuykendall in the 8th District and became the first black Congressman from Tennessee. Kuykendall also supported Nixon right up to his resignation.

The Democratic sweep covered the entire country as they racked up at least 291 House seats, giving them a clear two-thirds majority, with two races still undecided.

The Democrats picked up a net gain of at least three Senate seats for a total of 61.

The Democrats also increased their margins in both houses of the Tennessee General Assembly giving Blanton brighter prospects of passage of his legislative programs.

Blanton, who called it a "victory for the people," will take office in mid-January.

In the race for Public Service Commissioner, Z.D. Atkins won a landslide victory over his Republican challenger Jane Hardaway.

Officials schedule issue forum

Students will have a chance to question administrators, Faculty Senate President Harold Baldwin and ASB President David Dodd during the presidents' forum at noon Monday in the Grill annex.

"University officials will respond to student questions expressing items of interest," Dean of Students Robert LaLance said yesterday.

The forum will follow a question and answer format. Students may ask questions directly or send written inquiries to the correct official.

"The president's forum opens the avenue for students to obtain direct answers to their questions" ASB President David Dodd said.

The forum affords a chance for students to gain information and ideas from questions addressed to university officials, he said.

The forum should last an hour.

Students should help vets fight for GI benefit hike

Vietnam's "silent heroes" at MTSU are organizing into a group with the potential for a thundering voice. Campus Veterans Administration officials say that about 1,000 of the university's 10,127 students are veterans--one-tenth of the student population.

The veterans' grievance is simply that they are being screwed by the government that sent them to fight an unpopular war; that they are not being fairly repaid for their service in a war that exacted sacrifice only from its soldiers and not from the country as a whole.

Where did they get this idea? Probably while struggling to make ends meet like most students; but "most" students are usually younger, without families and are more dependent on their parents. Perhaps some veterans realized just how badly they are getting shafted when they read between the "girlie pictures" in this month's issue of Penthouse magazine. Based on the dollar's present buying power, Penthouse points out, VA's own figures reveal that "today's single veteran gets $1,820 less than his World War II counterpart, and today's married vet can get $1,968 less each year than his father after World War II."

While President Ford is indicating he will veto a compromise bill to raise GI educational benefits by 23 per cent (he had earlier vetoed a larger GI Bill), veterans have little encouragement that his administration will treat them better than the last.

In just two days, MTSU's veterans have gained 514 signatures on a petition asking Ford to sign the bill into law. And 198 veterans have asked they will help in revitalizing the campus organization; obviously, they are trying to help themselves.

We urge every student to join MTSU's Vietnam era veterans in their campaign to not become the country's forgotten veterans. Sign their petition today in the UC basement and lend your voice to their cry for a deserved increase in educational benefits.

Please leave us alone

Many of us are sick and tired of being put down because of our political beliefs. It is incredulous to me that people of supposed intellect and tolerance can be so biased as to denounce those of us who refuse to believe that the political process (be it democracy, communism, totalitarianism, fascism or whatever) can be the salvation of mankind; or indeed, if the political workings of any group of people can change anything for the better.

Some of us refuse to vote simply because we do not wish to have anything to do with any political game at all. Is it really right that you should cause your paper to come out in favor of repression of the opinions of a group of people no matter how small that group is?

We have been forced into this situation of having to live in a world oppressed by politics. Why must newspapers, electronic media and the rest of the population in general force us to participate? We will not.

We will abide by the rules you set as far as we can. When we can no longer abide by these rules; or when a rule is passed which is disagreeable to us, we will break it and suffer the consequences. Perhaps this is the only freedom we have left.

If you do not feel this way, fine. But please leave us alone.

What about humans?

So Bill Fisher thinks birds are messy, well, I think something should be done about the humans on this campus. I mean it's getting pretty bad when someone suggests annihilating your entire class because they can't read caution signs.

Humans are supposed to be the intelligent race. Don't they know walking under a tree laden with birds can be dangerous as flying through a busy freeway?

I think the administration should handle this situation. Maybe they could offer a course teaching the innocent student that heavily populated trees should be approached with caution and that birds are a necessary part of nature, even the wild ones.

Democrats lose excuse

by Van West

Well, for another two years at least the country has been spared from some of the incompetent politicians of the demagogic gentry. We can only hope that the likes of Ramsey Clark, Tim Schaffer, Marlowe Cook et. al. will not rise again. We can be assured that despite failings on both sides, the government can survive and function effectively.

Congratulations are in order for Governor-elect Ray Blanton and his campaign. Many were surprised and shocked at the margin by which Blanton won, but this observer was not. However, the voter turnout in Tennessee was surprising. I felt that the turnout would be about 100,000 votes less than what it was.

Some sort of congratulations are in order for Wilbur Mills. In this day of apparent American ineptness in South America, it is reassuring to know that at least one congressman can survive an Argentinian firecracker. However, Mr. Mills' vow never again to drink champagne with foreigners could deliver a serious blow to the already hurting wine industry.

The most significant outcome of the 1974 election was the increased majority in the Congress that the Democratic Party picked up. No longer do the Democrats have an excuse for the impotence of the Congress. The Democrats now have a heavy enough majority to greatly relieve our current problems with legislation from their own branch. They should not have to wait for presidential guidance.

This writer is mighty glad that election '74 is over. The President and Congress still have a good six weeks to resolve the country's problems. Let us hope they do. The fifth-rate politicians can now go back into hiding and hopefully out of the public's hair. The American people have made their choice; it is now time for those selected to exercise the leadership that we need.

Mid-state to 'rock' with concerts

by Scott Perry

The remainder of November will be filled with Rock N' Roll around the mid-state area with numerous concerts slated for Nashville and one for Murphy Center.

Todd Rundgren and his band Utopia will perform Sunday at the Vanderbilt Memorial Gym. The concert starts at 8 p.m.

On Nov. 15, Sha Na Na will put on a show at Nashville's Municipal Auditorium. The Fifties group will start the evening of nostalgia at 8:00 p.m. The concert is sponsored by Sound Seventy Productions.

Dickey Betts, former guitarist with the Allman Brothers Band, will present his "American Music Show" Nov. 18 at 8 p.m. at the New Opry House in Nashville.

Murphy Center will be the sight of the Mountain-James Gang concert on November 20. Tickets for that concert can be picked up at the UC ticket booth.

All of these concerts, except Rundgren, are sponsored or co-sponsored by Sound Seventy Productions and tickets can be purchased at the regular ticket locations. Here in Murfreesboro tickets can be bought at the Citizen's Central Bank.

Religious workshop to push for unity

The Serendipity Workshop, sponsored by the University Inter-faith Council, gets underway today at 4 p.m. at the Baptist Student Union in an effort for unity between the religious groups on campus. The sessions are designed for group interaction and provide a means of getting to know each other.

Irene Letchworth will be coordinating the sessions. She is a theology student at Southern Baptist Seminary in Louisville and a former associate campus minister at the University of South Florida.

The first session will last from 4 to 6 p.m. A Kentucky Fried Chicken dinner will be served between 6 and 7 p.m. for $1.

The second session will begin 7 and continue until about 9 p.

Will strike cause TVA power controls?

by Michael Gigandet

If the coal industry goes on strike next week, Tennesseans can expect TVA-imposed mandatory power controls within 10 days to two weeks after the strike begins, Joseph Sloan of the Middle Tennessee Electric Membership Corporation said Wednesday.

Sloan, who is director of member services, said TVA makes all the decisions about power use and the corporation, which serves four counties, only distributes electrical power.

TVA, he said, might ask the corporation to shut off power to large energy users, such as factories and plants, for "various periods of time."

Shutting off power to factories during the day would probably be "too disruptive," so some factories would shut down on a daily or weekly schedule, he said.

Voltage reductions by the authority would be passed on to corporation members causing brown outs, he warned.

Depending on the length and effect of the strike, the TVA will initiate a rotating black-out plan shutting off power to some areas for "two, three or four hours" at a time, Sloan explained.

"This is the kind of thing we want to avoid. Most can suffer through," he said.

One adverse effect of the black-outs is that it would be an "invitation to crime," because of the loss of lighting and burglar alarm systems, he pointed out.

Chief William Chambliss of the Murfreesboro police department said he would "wait and see and do whatever is necessary."

The auxiliary police force might be called up or the campus security force might be used to insure the city's protection, Chambliss predicted.

Chambliss said he might consider increasing police cruises if they are needed.

Tyree Wilkerson, maintenance supervisor at Rutherford County Hospital, said the major and critical areas of the hospital would have an adequate supply of power.

"We don't expect to be greatly affected by this," he said.

He pointed out that the hospital has diesel generators and an adequate supply of diesel oil in two 10,000-gallon tanks.

Since hospitals are on the high priority list, he said other arrangements could be made if the fuel runs low.

The university burns oil and gas for heat, and coal is used only in "extremely cold weather" as a standby fuel, according to Maintenance Supervisor Harold Jewell.

He said there would be no problem with heating.

However, the university gets its electrical power from off campus suppliers, he added.

"If the city's supply of current is affected we will definitely be affected as far as electrical current is concerned," Jewell said.

Raider backs against the wall at Western Kentucky

by Scott Elliott
Sports Editor

It's that time of year--time for the winners to emerge victorious with all the trimmings and for the losers to fall by the wayside.

The turning point has arrived for Coach Bill Peck's Blue Raider football team. The Raiders will take on arch rival Western Kentucky at 1 tomorrow afternoon with a winning or losing season hanging in the balance.

Peck's crew is 3-5 on the year, while the Hilltoppers are 6-1. Western is eyeing a second consecutive trip to the NCAA Division II playoffs, but the Toppers must get past MTSU first.

"Western is one of the finest teams I've ever coached against," Peck said. "They're aggressive, and they make you make mistakes."

"We're going to have to eliminate errors and play our own game to beat them."

Peck said he had the utmost respect for Western's defense, and added, "Sometimes it looks like they've got all 11 men within a yard of the ball. It's a heck of a scheme."

The Raider mentor indicated there would be no defensive changes in the MTSU game plan.

Although All-Ohio Valley Conference candidate Harry Flippin is lost for the season at his linebacker post with a knee injury and fullback Chuck Coggin is out,

Copeland garners player of week

The easy choice for player of the Week honors this time is Blue Raider Dwaine Copeland.

Copeland ripped off 200 yards rushing in 17 carries and scored both Raider touchdowns Saturday against the Cardinals of Ball State University. For his outstanding performance, Copeland was named OVC Player of the Week.

Copeland's longest gain was a 48-yard scamper for the first Blue Raider touchdown. He got his second six-pointer on a five-yard run in the second quarter.

Peck got a piece of good news this week when it was learned that safety Leigh Kolka will be ready to go against WKU.

Kolka suffered a knee injury in last week's 43-14 loss to Ball State. It was first thought the knee would require surgery, but Kolka was out on the practice field yesterday at full speed.

Another positive note for the Raiders will be the absence of Dennis Torlek, the Toppers' brilliant quarterback who is lost for the year after having suffered a broken collarbone in WKU's 36-0 win over Morehead.

However, Coach Jimmy Fiex has two young signal-callers in Bill Smith and Doug Davis who can probably fill the bill.

Peck has enjoyed great success as head coach against Western at L.T. Smith Stadium. The last two times the Raiders played there, they came out on top 17-13 and 21-17.

If this contest is played like MTSU-Western games in the past, it will be one worth watching.

The Raiders' backs are against the wall. Maybe the Big Blue can fight their way out.
