Crowd sees Cook effigy burn

by Tony Daughtrey

Memphis businessman Ned Cook was burned in effigy by the members of the Peoples Bicentennial Commission last night before more than fifty spectators.

Cook, who was chosen by the PBC as its second Tory of the Month, was burned for pressuring the Tennessee legislature into granting him a special tax break, according to a statement by the PBC.

PBC chairman Rick Edmondson opened the cremation ceremony with a speech on the purpose of the organization and its role in the demonstration.

"It's time for every patriotic American to recognize the forces that are threatening our survival and to act decisively to restore a sense of order and decency back into the life of our country," Edmondson said.

Edmondson said America must choose between "living under the control of the giant corporations" or exercising the right to "abolish institutions of tyranny and replace them with new forms that provide for equal participation in economic decisions."

Calling Cook a "corporate baron and notorious weasle," PBC member Tom Wells charged him with the following crimes:

1) Misuse of wealth and power

2) Extortion of $300,000 from the state treasury

3) Blackmailing the legislature into granting Cook industries a special tax break

4) Selling American wheat to the USSR which forced a rise in the prices of wheat products

5) Bribing grain inspectors and selling sour grain.

Following the reading of the charges, the last rites were pronounced by "Father" Mel Toombs, a self-ordained "minister" in the Church of the Empty Wallet. Toombs was attired in a traditional robe, but without a rosary.

Dean of Students Paul Cantrell lit the fire to the effigy upon the request of the members of the PBC. Cantrell, who was chosen by the group as its first Tory of the Month, had previously denied permission for the demonstration, but reversed his decision following articles in the Tennessean and Sidelines about the ban.

The effigy, which was stuffed with leaves and decorated with the face of a pig, burned for several minutes as students roasted marshmallows over the flames. The fire was extinguished by the Murfreesboro Fire Department.

Though the majority of the spectators expressed support for the burning, a few dissenters were present.

"I am against singling out one man," Michael Thomas, a Murfreesboro freshman, said. "Our legislature should be up there, not Ned Cook."

"If you disagree with what the legislature has done, jump on them," he said.

Students interested in the dealings of Cook Industries may read a collection of documentary evidence compiled by MTSU library. This collection has been placed at the periodical reserve desk on the second floor of the library.

Shelbyville socialist attacks 'modern corporatism'

by Rick Edmondson

The modern factory may be thought of as one big machine in which the average workers are only cogs, Floyd Yeomans, a member of the Socialist Party USA, said in a speech sponsored by the Ideas and Issues Committee Tuesday.

Yeomans said Social Democrats want men to be in control of their own lives, but that "now we have rule by giant, impersonal corporations."

"Very rarely is a man able to enter into a business of his own, and when he does it's usually as a satellite of some big bank," he said.

Yeomans, a resident of Shelbyville whose letters frequently appear in The Tennessean, compared "modern corporatism" of today with the feudal system of the Middle Ages.

"Democratic Socialists are opposed to dictatorship," he said, emphasizing that "we must use democratic means toward our end; otherwise we will get totalitarianism or something akin to fascism."

Yeomans advocated an economic system in which a community's resources would be owned and controlled by members of that community.

Floyd Yeomans

"President Eisenhower used to talk about 'creeping socialism.' Well, he was right," Yeomans stated, adding that "creeping socialism" is responsible for such programs as social security and medicare.

"Over the past 30 or 40 years, creeping socialism has been reclaiming forests and land devastated by capitalism," he said.

"Democratic Socialist note that the same people who talk about creeping socialism also check into government hospitals to cure their ills," he said, adding that "the only trouble with creeping socialism is there isn't enough of it."

Although Yeomans said the Scandinavian countries have come closest to his concept of an ideal society, the Socialist Party member sharply criticized the political and economic system of the Soviet Union, comparing it to a giant corporation.

Corporations have many stockholders and theoretically they are the owners of the corporation, but actually the average stockholder has nothing to say about the corporation's business, he said.

"Well, the Soviet Union strikes me as one big conglomerate," he explained, adding that theoreticcally the people control everything, but that actually it's all run by a small group.

Yeomans blasted those leftist groups who would use violence and terrorism as a means of achieving their ends. "We (democratic Socialists) think they are madmen," he said.

Yeomans, born in 1899, said he is "discouraged and disgusted by the human imbecilities I've seen. I'm an old man and my time is past," he stated. "It is now up to the young people if things are ever going to change."

Senate reports to Scarlett

In a final meeting this week to discuss the report on committees the Faculty Senate made their final "recommendations and have sent their report to President Scarlett."

This report will now go to the "offices of the Vice-presidents who will make their final report," John Hood, administrative assistant said Thursday.

"It will probably be the end of the semester or beginning of the Spring semester before this program is implemented," Hood stated.

Hood also said that it would be

"after all committees were formed before the new body, the Administrative Council, is formed.

This structure is to be an "information center for the president," Hood added.

The committee would consist of the four vice-presidents, president of the Faculty Senate and ASB president," Hood stated.

Fraternity plans

activity weekend

A weekend of activities including a dance and an "auction" is in progress, sponsored by Kappa Alpha Psi fraternity.

The weekend was kicked off last night with a smoker for the M.I.K. (Men Inclined Kappa). After the Saturday game with Western Kentucky, the KA Psi Kittens will "Step" in front of the UC at 4:30 p.m.

A "slave" auction in which the Kittens may "purchase" a male of their choice for the evening is scheduled for the DA auditorium at 6:30.

Concluding the weekend of activities will be a dance sponsored by Kappa Alpha Psi and Alpha Kappa Alpha sorority in the Tennessee Room of the SUB. Admission is seventy-five cents.

Frosh cheering squad chosen

Four regular cheerleaders and two alternates will comprise the new 1975-76 freshman cheerleading squad, according to Judy Smith, cheerleading sponsor.

Regular squad members are Alice Culbertson of Tullahoma, Mimi Hodges of Chattanooga, Art Swary of Mufreesboro and Mike Williams of Waverly.

These freshmen will cheer at junior varsity and women's home basketball games, Smith said.

Alternate cheerleaders are Michelle Taylor of Shelbyville and Gary Reeves of Hermitage.

'Streaking,' panty raids hit campus

The girls of Rutledge Hall give their honest reaction to last night's panty raids.

Taking advantage of unseasonably warm November weather, a group of MTSU males have participated in streaking and panty raids for three straight days.

Tuesday night, several streakers were sighted near Cummings hall. One was slightly injured when, waving to the dorm residents, he hit a tree in his path.

Wednesday night, streakers hit Smith Hall, disguised with paper bags over their heads. This group was last seen near the freshman dorms.

Last night a group of from 50-60 male students conducted a full-scale panty assault on all dorms on campus. Beginning with the high rises, the group swept across campus to the freshman dorms (except Rutledge) and then back to the male dorms across campus.

In addition, three streakers were sighted near the Student Union Building and at several dorms during the confusion of the raid.

"The reason we started this in the first place was that we were being accused of it anyway," according to the unnamed second-in command of the brigade. "We're not going to raid Cummings Hall next time because we didn't get anything from them."

Effigy burning shows nation's real strength

The burning of corporate baron Ned Cook in effigy last night capped off a short period of debate and controversy over the rights of the individual as opposed to the authority of the university.

As usual in this country, the rights of the individual came out on top. Ned Cook does indeed represent much of what is wrong with our system. His millions in untaxed profits are a slap in the face to the vast majority of our nation's citizens--the middle class taxpayers.

His blackmailing of the state legislature serves to prove that the state has a long way to go before achieving a truly representative, honest and trustworthy government.

Cook's sale of bad grain to domestic and foreign customers can only heighten mistrust of big business at home and mistrust of the United States abroad.

But the People's Bicentennial Commission and all those who witnessed and applauded their action should bear in mind that the demonstration of last night serves to point out the strength of the American system rather than its weaknesses.

After all, this country is not such a bad place to live.

For all the concentration of wealth in the hands of a few, wealth is a terribly relative thing. The statement has become trite, but even a poor individual by our standards is still better off than 90 per cent of the earth's inhabitants.

But most importantly, the PBC and its supporters should remember that few nations would have allowed the demonstration of In most places, the original decision by Dean of Students Paul Cantrell to forbid the event would not have been overturned--mainly because most other places don't have a constitution based upon the moral, God-given rights of the individual.

To the PBC: Bravo, keep up your fight for even more equality, but always be thankful that you live in a society that allows you to do just that.

Writer hits women's lib coverage

Why can't you get a news editor who can write on something beside's women's lib? Trina Jones was against the Miss MTSU contest, and now she is parading against the hot pants contest. Sure she has the right to protest it, but she should realize that a lot of women like being in these contests.

On Oct. 29 (Alice Doesn't Day), there was more pink worn on campus than Alice Doesn't badges. This should have told Trina Jones that all the women on campus are not for women's liberation. Many of them enjoy being treated like ladies, not just women.

The ERA bill that Trina Jones is pushing for is not really that great for women anyway. The big things the women lib groups want from ERA is equal pay and equal employment opportunities. This is fine with me. However, there are already laws that prohibit discrimination in these fields.

The women libs groups do not, however, point out the bad points of the ERA bill. Some of these are: 1. If another war starts up and the draft is used again, women would no longer be exempt. 2. Women's sports would be done away with. 3. Women would not longer get the protection they now have by law. An example of this is wife beating. With the ERA, the wife would have to have witnesses and the whole 9 yards before the husband would be punished. 4. In a divorce, the woman would not automatically get the child.

You are the one yelling for equality all the way, Trina, so why don't you put it into practice and give the anti-lib women as much newspaper space as you do the pro-lib women?

Attendance asked by black leader

The leaders of the Black Student Association (BSA) are filled with deep concern for the accomplishments and social progress of the Black students on this campus and in the surrounding community. Ralph Boston, once director of minority affairs at UT Knoxville and one-time holder of the long jump, will appear in the Tennessee room of the SUB Monday, Nov. 10 at 7 p.m.

The BSA would like to see the cooperative concept applied in our school as well as in the community. This type of cohesiveness is not a fantasy. We need this movement to bring about a new kind of togetherness that will in turn, result in constructive changes.

The BSA lacks majority, and through a majority is the only way in which proper representation and sharing of control can be obtained.

The Black Student Association is asking for everyone's presence and participation Monday night at the Student Union Building.

1920's jazz 'brought alive' in concert

Jazz--Yes, the age of the '20's was brought back alive Tuesday night in the DA auditorium.

It was the Second Annual Winter Concert for the MTSU Jazz Ensemble. "Gyroscope," a group led by Beegie Cruiser, was also present.

The concert opened with the performance of the MTSU Jazz Ensemble. Several of their songs had strong elements of jazz with a touch of mellowness. They also played a number by Blood, Sweat and Tears entitled "Alone" which pleased the crowd.

"The Way We Were" was sung by W.O. Smith, who was the band's featured vocalist.

Blood donations top expectations

A total of 478 pints of blood was given by MTSU students, staff and administrators in Tuesday's Red Cross blood drive in the University Center, according to James Taylor, one of the drive coordinators.

The drive, sponsored by the MTSU Scabbard and Blade Club, received a "fantastic response," Taylor, a colonel in the military science department, said.

"I can't say enough about the students and faculty who gave us such tremendous support," Taylor said. "The Red Cross's goal was 400 pints and we went well beyond that."

Many students not only donated their blood, but donated a great deal of time and "we had to turn some people away because the Red Cross did not anticipate the large turnout," he said.

According to Taylor, Rutherford County was behind in total number of pints of blood on reserve, but the MTSU drive will keep the county going.

A certificate will be awarded to the club, sorority, and fraternity that donated the most blood, Taylor said. However, he attributed the response not so much to competition, but to the individual concern of the students.

Another blood drive is scheduled for March, he said.

Photography exhibit

opens Sunday in LRC

An exhibit featuring the color and black and white photography of Mirle Freel of Columbus, Ohio, will open Sunday in MTSU's photographic gallery, located in the Learning Resources Center.

Gallery hours in the LRC are 7:30 a.m.-10 p.m. Monday through Thursday; 7:30 a.m.-6 p.m. Friday; 7:30-5 p.m. Saturday and 2-10 p.m. Sunday.

They did a Tommy Newsome arrangement, "The Walls of Jerico," which featured trumpet.

"Stranger in Paradise" and "Midnight at the Oasis" were a couple of their opening numbers.

After a short break, the stage lights were on "Gyroscope." The group consisted of Beegie Cruiser who played piano, a bass player and a drummer.

"The Lady is a Tramp" was a number that featured the drummer as vocalist.

"Gyroscope" did the number

"Jessie" which was slow, soft and pretty. The crowd really liked this one.

They ended their performance with "Spain," which was followed by a standing ovation.

For the last number of the night, the MTSU Jazz Ensemble, featuring Beegie on the piano, played "Lover."

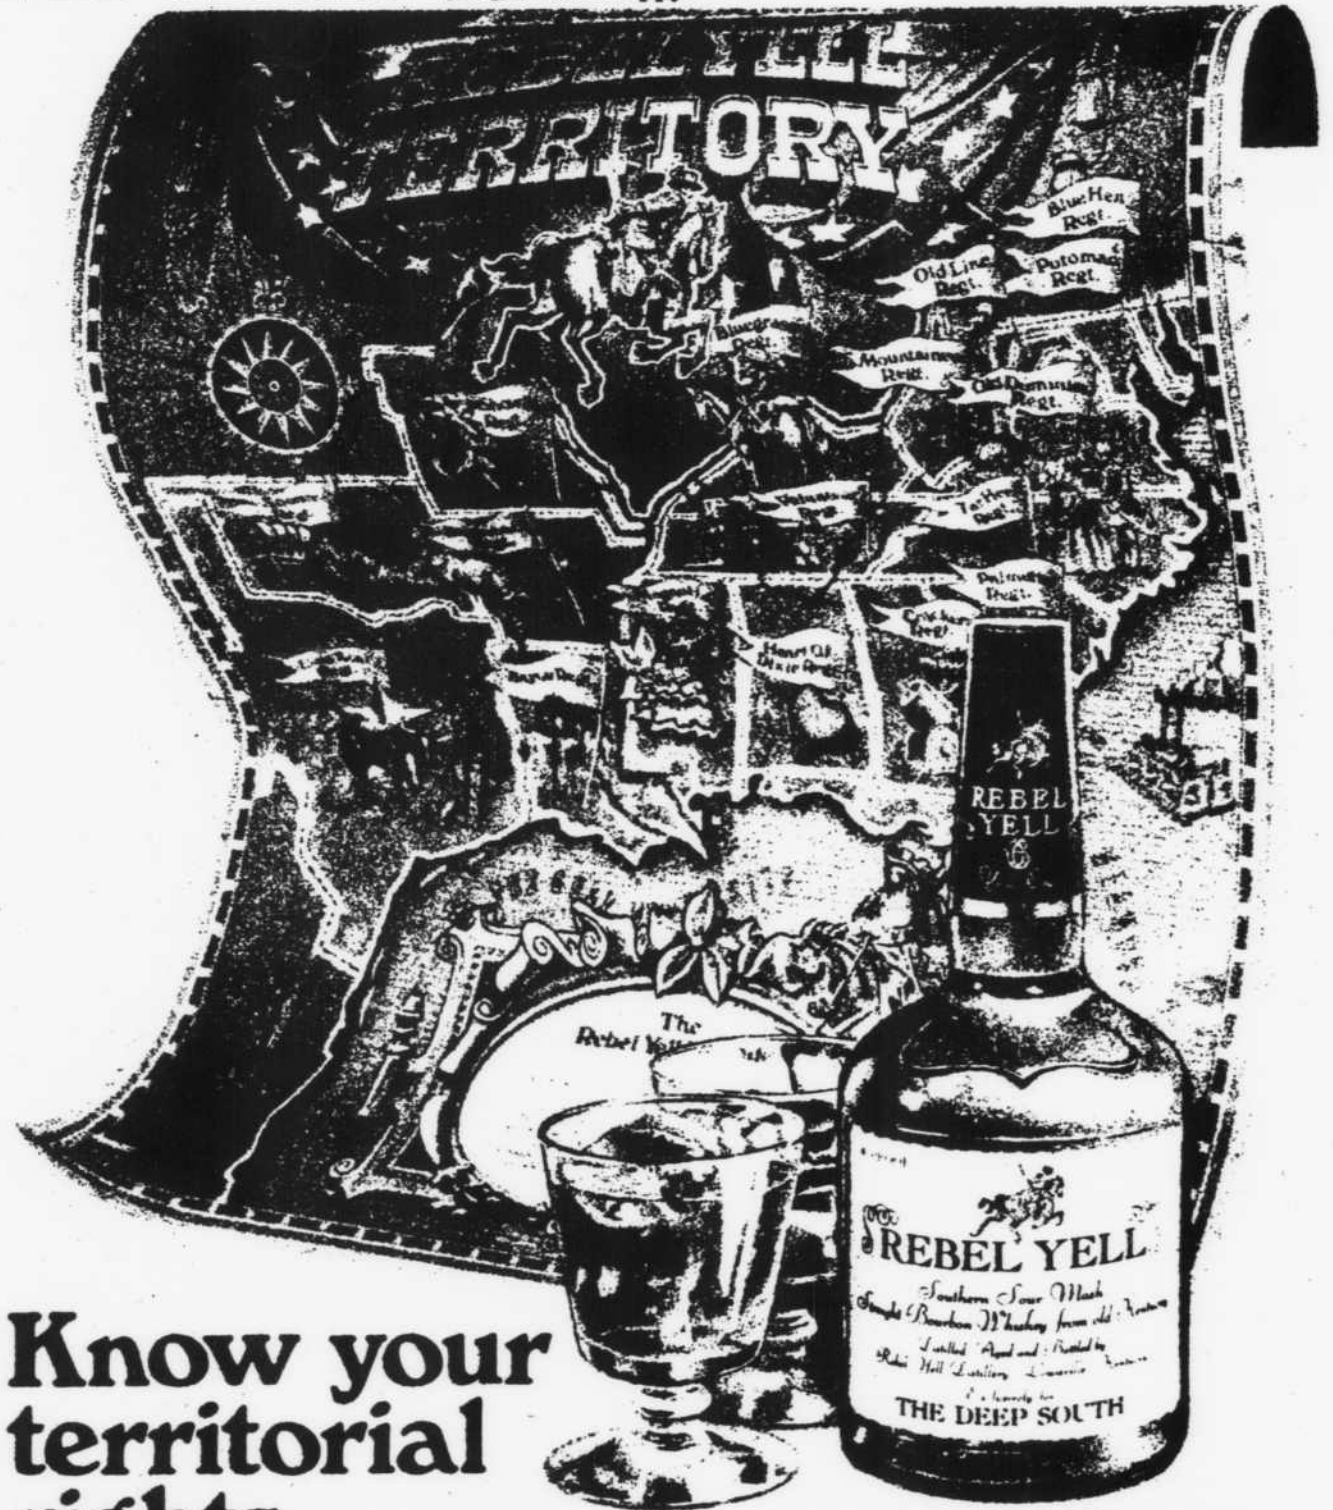

It seemed as if the crowd enjoyed most of the concert. A few people did walk out during the performance, but as a whole, most of the people were happy.

Who concert tickets still on sale in UC

There are numerous seats still available for the upcoming Who concert according to Harold Smith, director of student programming.

"We still have $7 and $8 seats available in bleacher sections E, F, G and J plus seats in sections A, B, C, and D of theatre chairs," Smith said.

Who tickets may be purchased from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. in UC 308

'Now or Never' clash arrives for Blue

In 1960, Elvis Presley recorded the monumental hit. "It's Now or Never."

Today, 15 years later, that famous title holds true for the Blue Raiders as they prepare for the 1:30 p.m. kick-off tomorrow with Western Kentucky.

WOODPECKIN'

by Tom Wood
Sports Editor

Western is coming into this game much like a giant, and MTSU will play the role of Jack, the giant-killer.

Western is the fifth ranked small college in the nation, and fourth nationally in defense. "Their defense tries to intimidate you," MTSU mentor Ben Hurt said.

"I have great confidence in our offense," Hurt added, "If we can keep from making turnovers, well, we'll just have to see what happens. It will be a tremendous challenge to our offense."

MTSU is facing not only the game which could pull them back into the title picture, but also a tie-breaker with Western.

The series record between the two teams is tied at 20-20-1, and neither team is anxious to be on the lower rung of that battle.

Western, coached by Jimmy Feix, owns the leading defense in the OVC, and that is where the heart of their team lies. The Hilltoppers have only allowed opponents an average of 175.6 yards-per-game, whereas MTSU has given up 383.1 yards-per-game, last in the OVC.

The Blue Raider offense is averaging 341.5 yards per game, second in the OVC and 1.1 yards behind Eastern Kentucky.

Spearheading the Hilltopper defense is linebacker Rick Green, named the league's defensive player of the week for setting a new school record with 7 assists against Morehead last Saturday.

"He just seemed to be everywhere," Feix said. "It was just a fantastic performance.

"I watched them all week," offensive co-ordinator Bobby Baldwin said, "and it was kind of like watching a horror movie."

Other notes of interest: Melvin Boyd, John Emert and Terry Woodfork have been named permanent captains for the remainder of the season. Woodfork has the distinction of possibly being the only player in the history of collegiate football to be named captain of two teams in the same year.

He was elected a 1975 captain at Tampa University before they dropped football.

Moore reels off third weekly honor

By breaking Dwaine Copeland's single game rushing record with a 212 yard, two touchdown effort against Western Carolina, Mike Moore has earned his third ranking as Sidelines player of the week.

While only 136 yards separates Moore from the all-time MTSU rushing record established in 1953 by Booby Young, the sophomore fullback is leading the conference in rushing with 947 yards.

Bobby Joe Easter, Moore's running mate in the veer backfield, is next on the OVC chart with 764 yards after racking up 177 yards against the Catamounts.

Though overlooked by many, Easter's performance was the third highest total accumulated during a single game in Blue Raider history, and he was named co-offensive player of the week by the coaching staff, along with Moore.

"They (Moore and Easter) played a superb game," said offensive co-ordinator Bobby Baldwin of the premier running backs in the OVC, "but credit for our victory must go to the offensive line. They certainly put it all together against Western Carolina."

The 6-1, 200 pound sophomore from Chattanooga, has had four 100-plus yard games this year, and "could play for anybody in the nation," according to head coach Ben Hurt.

Blue Raider roundup

Soccer; Trying to bounce back from a 1-7-2 season last year, the MTSU International Soccer Club will open the season by hosting Father Ryan 2 p.m Sunday.

The game will be played on the soccer field beside the Greenland Drive parking lot and will mark the appearance of rookie head coach Race Bergman.

Wrestling; Any woman interested in joining the "mat maids," a group of cheerleaders for the wrestling team, is asked to attend an organizational meeting at 6:45 p.m. on Nov. 12 in room 310 of the UC.

Women's volleyball: Completing the season with a 15-28 record, the women's volleyball team dropped a pair of matches to Tennessee Tech in Cookeville Wednesday night.

Winning the second game in each match, the Raiderettes fell in the opening match by 6-15, 15-9 and 9-15 before dropping the final regular season match of the year 13-15, 16-14 and 13-15.

On the basis of last season's finish the Raiderettes will carry a number three seed into the Tennessee College Women's Federation State Volleyball Tournament at Austin Peay Nov. 14-15.
